

SENATE SUMMARY MEETING OF MAY 16, 2022

1. Report of the Chair

The Chair reported that Vice-President, Academic and Provost Catherine Dauvergne has decided to return to her teaching and research and will be taking a short leave before moving into the next stage of her academic and professional career. Catherine came to SFU at the beginning of the pandemic, providing extraordinary leadership during a difficult time. Appreciation was expressed on behalf of the entire University for her hard work, and especially for her commitment to advancing reconciliation at SFU and for her work bringing the SFU medical school to life. Professor Wade Parkhouse will assume responsibilities as Vice-President, Academic and Provost for the period of July 1, 2022 to August 31, 2023.

The Chair reported that moving forward, the executive team is committed to strengthening the role of the Vice-President, Academic and Provost, and the Board of Governors has provided direction to strengthen the Provost model. This will mean a reprioritization of the academic mission across the University, reviewing resource allocation, the VPA-Provost structure, and leadership roles in order to strengthen the Provost role and model at SFU.

The Chair reported that Dr. Yabome Gilpin-Jackson has been named as SFU's first Vice-President, People, Equity and Inclusion. In her first month as VPPEI, Yabome has been working to fill vacant senior positions and meeting with key stakeholders across the University and is also mapping out her approach to developing People and EDI strategies.

The Chair reported that SFU continues to work on the medical school and is encouraged by Minister Dix's commitment made during Question Period on March 29th: With respect to the SFU medical school, it's a commitment in the government's four-year plan, and we intend to meet that commitment during this mandate. Last week the University sent the first SFU Medical School submission to the Ministry of Advanced Education and Skills Training. The document includes the vision and pillars, curriculum development approach, partnerships, next steps and a preliminary estimate of operating costs. Initial letters of support have been received from ten organizations, including the First Nations Health Authority, Indigenous Physicians of Canada, DiverseCity, KPU, the Downtown Surrey Business Improvement Association, and the City of Surrey.

The Chair reported that after six weeks of community conversations through ThoughtExchange and a survey, Phase 1 of SFU: What'sNext? has officially concluded. During Phase 1, the University heard from more than 2,000 community members on topics like SFU's next bold move, the values and principles SFU should uphold, what SFU could stop doing to make room for renewed priorities, and more. SFU is in the process of hiring several graduate students with diverse lived experiences to process data from ThoughtExchange and help group that information into themes. The full report of Phase 1 will be available in the summer. Phase 2 will consist of round table conversations led by leaders from across the University. These conversations will begin to translate the big ideas heard in Phase 1 into what SFU's next steps mean for us as individuals and teams.

The Chair reported news about the recently established Indigenous Naming Committee, sponsored by VP External Relations Joanne Curry and led by committee member Ron Johnston, with Special Advisor Chris (Syeta'xtn) Lewis. The committee is picking up work related to ARC Call to Action #5: Install Aboriginal signage, place names, translations of building names and path indicators at all three campuses. Indigenous names honour and recognize the First Nations on whose unceded and traditional territories SFU campuses reside. Informed by existing Indigenous naming protocols and processes, the first phase of this work will focus on a campus-by-campus approach. Current projects include three campus names, three Indigenous student space names, the First Peoples' Gathering House and the Indigenous Curriculum Resource Centre.

The Chair reported that earlier this month, SFU welcomed back 3,000 alumni who had their convocation ceremonies virtually during COVID-19. As the University gears up for its regular June convocation, appreciation was expressed to all those who plan and execute these ceremonies.
