For Information

Enclosed is a copy of the transfer credit agreement that Douglas College and Simon Fraser University has made with the Native Education Centre (NEC).

NEC is a private post-secondary institution in Vancouver that is operated under the auspices of the Urban Native Indian Education Society. In the past they have partnered with Douglas College to offer the first year Criminology Program at the Centre.

NEC now has an Aboriginal Justice Study Program at their institution. They are in the process of obtaining academic accreditation with the BC Council and Admissions Council (BCCAT) but that may take a year or so.

The articulation of these courses will be on an interim measure until the BCCAT accreditation process has been completed.

Dear Mr. Walkus

Douglas College and Simon Fraser University have articulated six of your Criminology courses below as transferable to both of our institutions. The articulation of these courses is an interim measure until there is a procedure in place whereby your Centre may apply for 'academic accreditation' for articulation and transfer in the BC Transfer System (BCCAT).

The other four courses you submitted for evaluation are still under review.
