FACULTY OF ARTS

Dear Ellen,

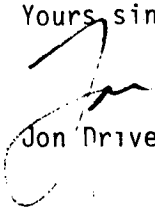

The enclosed material deals with the establishment of a new course in Archaeology. I won't be able to make any FACC meetings, because I'm teaching on Thursdays. However, I don't anticipate any problems in getting the new course approved.

For the information of other FACC members :

1. This course reflects the research interests of a newly appointed faculty member, who is internationally known for her work in this field.
2. The course has been taught a number of times before as a Special topics course, with very good enrollments.
3. No, we do not anticipate any suggestions that this course "conflicts" with offerings in other departments such as Biology.
4. I cannot change the course title or calendar description without consulting Dr. Galdikas, who will be in the Borneo rain forests until Christmas.
5. The subject matter of the course is entirely appropriate to our department, because Physical Anthropology courses are currently offered through the Department of Archaeology, as are M.A. and Ph.D. programmes.

I hope these comments anticipate any comments from FACC,

Yours sincerely,

Jon Driver

From Sharon Thomas, Head

Subject.... New Course: ... ARCH. 344 FACULTY OF ARTS Date June 1, 1989

Primate Behaviour has been included in our collections profiles for several years and we have supported this course as a special topics offering for some time. In fact we already have at least one copy of each of the 23 titles mentioned in the reading list as well as a reasonably substantial body of supplementary sources.

However, we are lacking subscriptions to the two journals which should be added if this course is to be a permanent part of the curriculum.

Annual costs for these journals, at present exchange rates, would be as follows:

1) International Journal of Primatology	$165.00
2) American Journal of Primatology	495.00
	$660.00/year
