Rationale for the Course

The course is intended for students preparing to teach and for practicing teachers. While the practical problems of discipline and classroom management may be learned in a classroom, the need exists to explore and examine issues outside the pressures of actual classroom teaching. The content of the course may also be of interest to parents and those pursuing a non-teacher Minor in Educational Studies. The course emphasises a psychological perspective but also examines briefly social and philosophical issues.

The course has been offered as a special topics course for the past three years during the summer semester to high enrolments. A mix of pre-service students, Education 404 and teachers have enrolled in the course.

I. Overview of Classroom Management and Discipline

1. Historical perspective
2. Philosophical and ethical issues

II. Learning Models

1. Operant strategies
2. Social learning strategies
3. Self-control approaches

III. Group Dynamics Models

1. Glasser's classroom meetings
2. Kounin's group management approach

IV. Personal/Social Growth Models

1. Dreikers' teleoanalytic approach
2. Rogers' non-directive teaching
3. Tanner's eclectic position

V. Organizational, Administrative and Legislative Issues

1. B.C. Public Schools Act
2. Legal Rights and Responsibilities
3. Intra-School and Home-School Interactions
