Stories of academic dishonesty (plagiarism, fabrication of data, etc.) have made headlines in the news in recent years. Deliberate acts of sabotage of other people's work, such as tampering with computer systems (introducing a "virus") or vandalizing controversial experiments, are probably even more harmful. While such occurrences are not nearly so common as the news media might lead one to believe, nevertheless, the problems are serious and must not be ignored. Dishonest behavior at the student level is a precursor to similar behavior at the professional level. It is important that we should inculcate standards of academic conduct, and deal effectively with the small number of offenders.

BAWA, Mandeep Singh

Faculty of Business Administration
B.Com., MBA (Punjab Univ, India)

Graduate Student - MBA (Accounting & International Business)

Senate Library Committee/Library Penalties Appeals Committee:

I have been a member of LPAC for more than a year. Currently, I chair this Committee. During my previous term, I was exposed to the unique problems and constraints of the SFU Library and its plans for changes in the future. Having worked in the Library, I also have an insiders perspective on its operations. I would therefore like to sit on the SLC/LPAC.

Senate Committee on International Activities:

I am an international student and have two degrees from eastern schools. I am thus aware of how eastern/South Asian bureaucracies, universities and other systems work. In my current program at SFU, I am doing a concentration in International Business. I have also been active in the university's International Club. I feel very motivated in serving on the SCIA.

SMITH, Shawn Roderick

Department (undeclared)
 Faculty of Arts

I wish to get further involved in this dynamic institution. I feel my lack of years are an incredible asset in which I hope will come freshness of opinion.

My goals as a student senator serving on these committees is to continue the process of change, for my fellow students, while still believing I can change the world.

Serving on the B.C. Youth Council for the past two years, during the last of which I was treasurer, I see my skills learned there would also benefit these senate committees.

One of my major goals as a senator is to increase the awareness of Simon Fraser among possible students in the eastern interior of British Columbia.

WADE, Shawn

Department of History
 Faculty of Arts

I have been on SCAP and SCUB for three years and, in that time, have acquired both a degree of understanding of and a love for the academic planning and budgetary planning processes of the University. I believe that the current budgetary and fiscal situation of the University calls for a student member who has acquired some feel for how the process works, and who can therefore hopefully contribute constructively to the academic and budgetary process of the university.
