Conditional Admission

A student who wishes to apply in any of the above categories can be given Conditional Admission before he has all the qualifications for admission. In that case, he is conditionally admitted contingent upon his fulfilling certain specified requirements.

Rationale: This has been our practice for some time but certain departments want it written into the regulations.

MEMORANDUM

To J. Wheatley

Subject Graduate Regulations

From B.P. Clayman, Chairman
Physics G.P.C.
Date 26 September 1975

I recommend that the Cumulative Grade Point Average (CGPA) as defined in section 5.1 be redefined as the average of all graduate courses accepted toward a Master's or Doctoral degree.

Undergraduate courses may not be applied against the minimum coursework requirements, so they should not be used to calculate the CGPA which is used (section 5.3) as the criterion for continuation and graduation.
