RE	Name for new Faculty
DATE	May 30, 2008

After a lengthy series of discussions and consultations across and within the Schools of Communication, Contemporary Arts, and Interactive Arts and Technology, and additional discussion with the Masters of Publishing Program, a strong consensus has been reached on a name for the new Faculty:

Faculty of Communication, Art and Technology. (FCAT)

This name reflects important strengths within each of the Schools individually, and more importantly, describes related and overlapping interests within the new Faculty.

It is believed as well that this name complements the names of the other Faculties at SFU, and will help to attract the interest of new students to the University.

This name enjoys the strong support of all of the units. All of the units have requested that I bring this forward on their behalf, as the name to be approved by Senate.

Dr. Brian Lewis
Dean
Faculty of Applied Sciences
