New Course Proposed

S.A. 420-4 Sociology of Aging

A consideration of the structural and behavioural implications of aging. Topics included will be: demographic aspects of aging; the relationship of aging to political, economic, familial and other social institutions; the social psychological significance of aging.

Rationale

The sociology of aging is a core course in the new Gerontology Diploma programme, which will be commencing in the fall 1983 semester. The course has been offered twice under the S.A. 460/461 "Special Topics" rubric (81-1 and 83-1) and draws a substantial number of students.
