MEMORANDUM

To Senate

From Academic Planning Committee

Subject FACULTY OF ARTS - PROPOSED
SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY
CURRICULUM

Date 23 October, 1974

The curriculum proposals of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology were submitted to the Faculty of Arts Curriculum Committee and to the Faculty of Arts for approval. Subsequently the curriculum was discussed on a course-by-course basis by the Senate Committee on Undergraduate Studies. The program, as approved by the Senate Committee on Undergraduate Studies, was then considered on a programmatic basis by the Academic Planning Committee during the past several weeks. The Academic Planning Committee sought information in addition to that presented with the proposal and, on the basis of the information received now recommends to Senate approval of the proposed Sociology and Anthropology curriculum as attached, with courses as set out in the documentation provided. The Committee further recommends that the date of implementation of the new curriculum be September 1, 1975, and that within a two-year period from the date of implementation the program be reviewed by a peer group external to the University.

It is anticipated that the Department of Political Science new curriculum submission will be available for Senate discussion in December. At that time a formal Motion for appropriate and reasonable discontinuation of previous PSA programs, without undue hardship to any participating students, will be presented.

As will be seen from the attached diagram, there are several groupings of courses in the Department offerings which naturally fit together. These include:

SA 304, 308, 310, 312, 315, 320, 321, 322)for sociology 325, 331, 333, 362, 427)majors
also

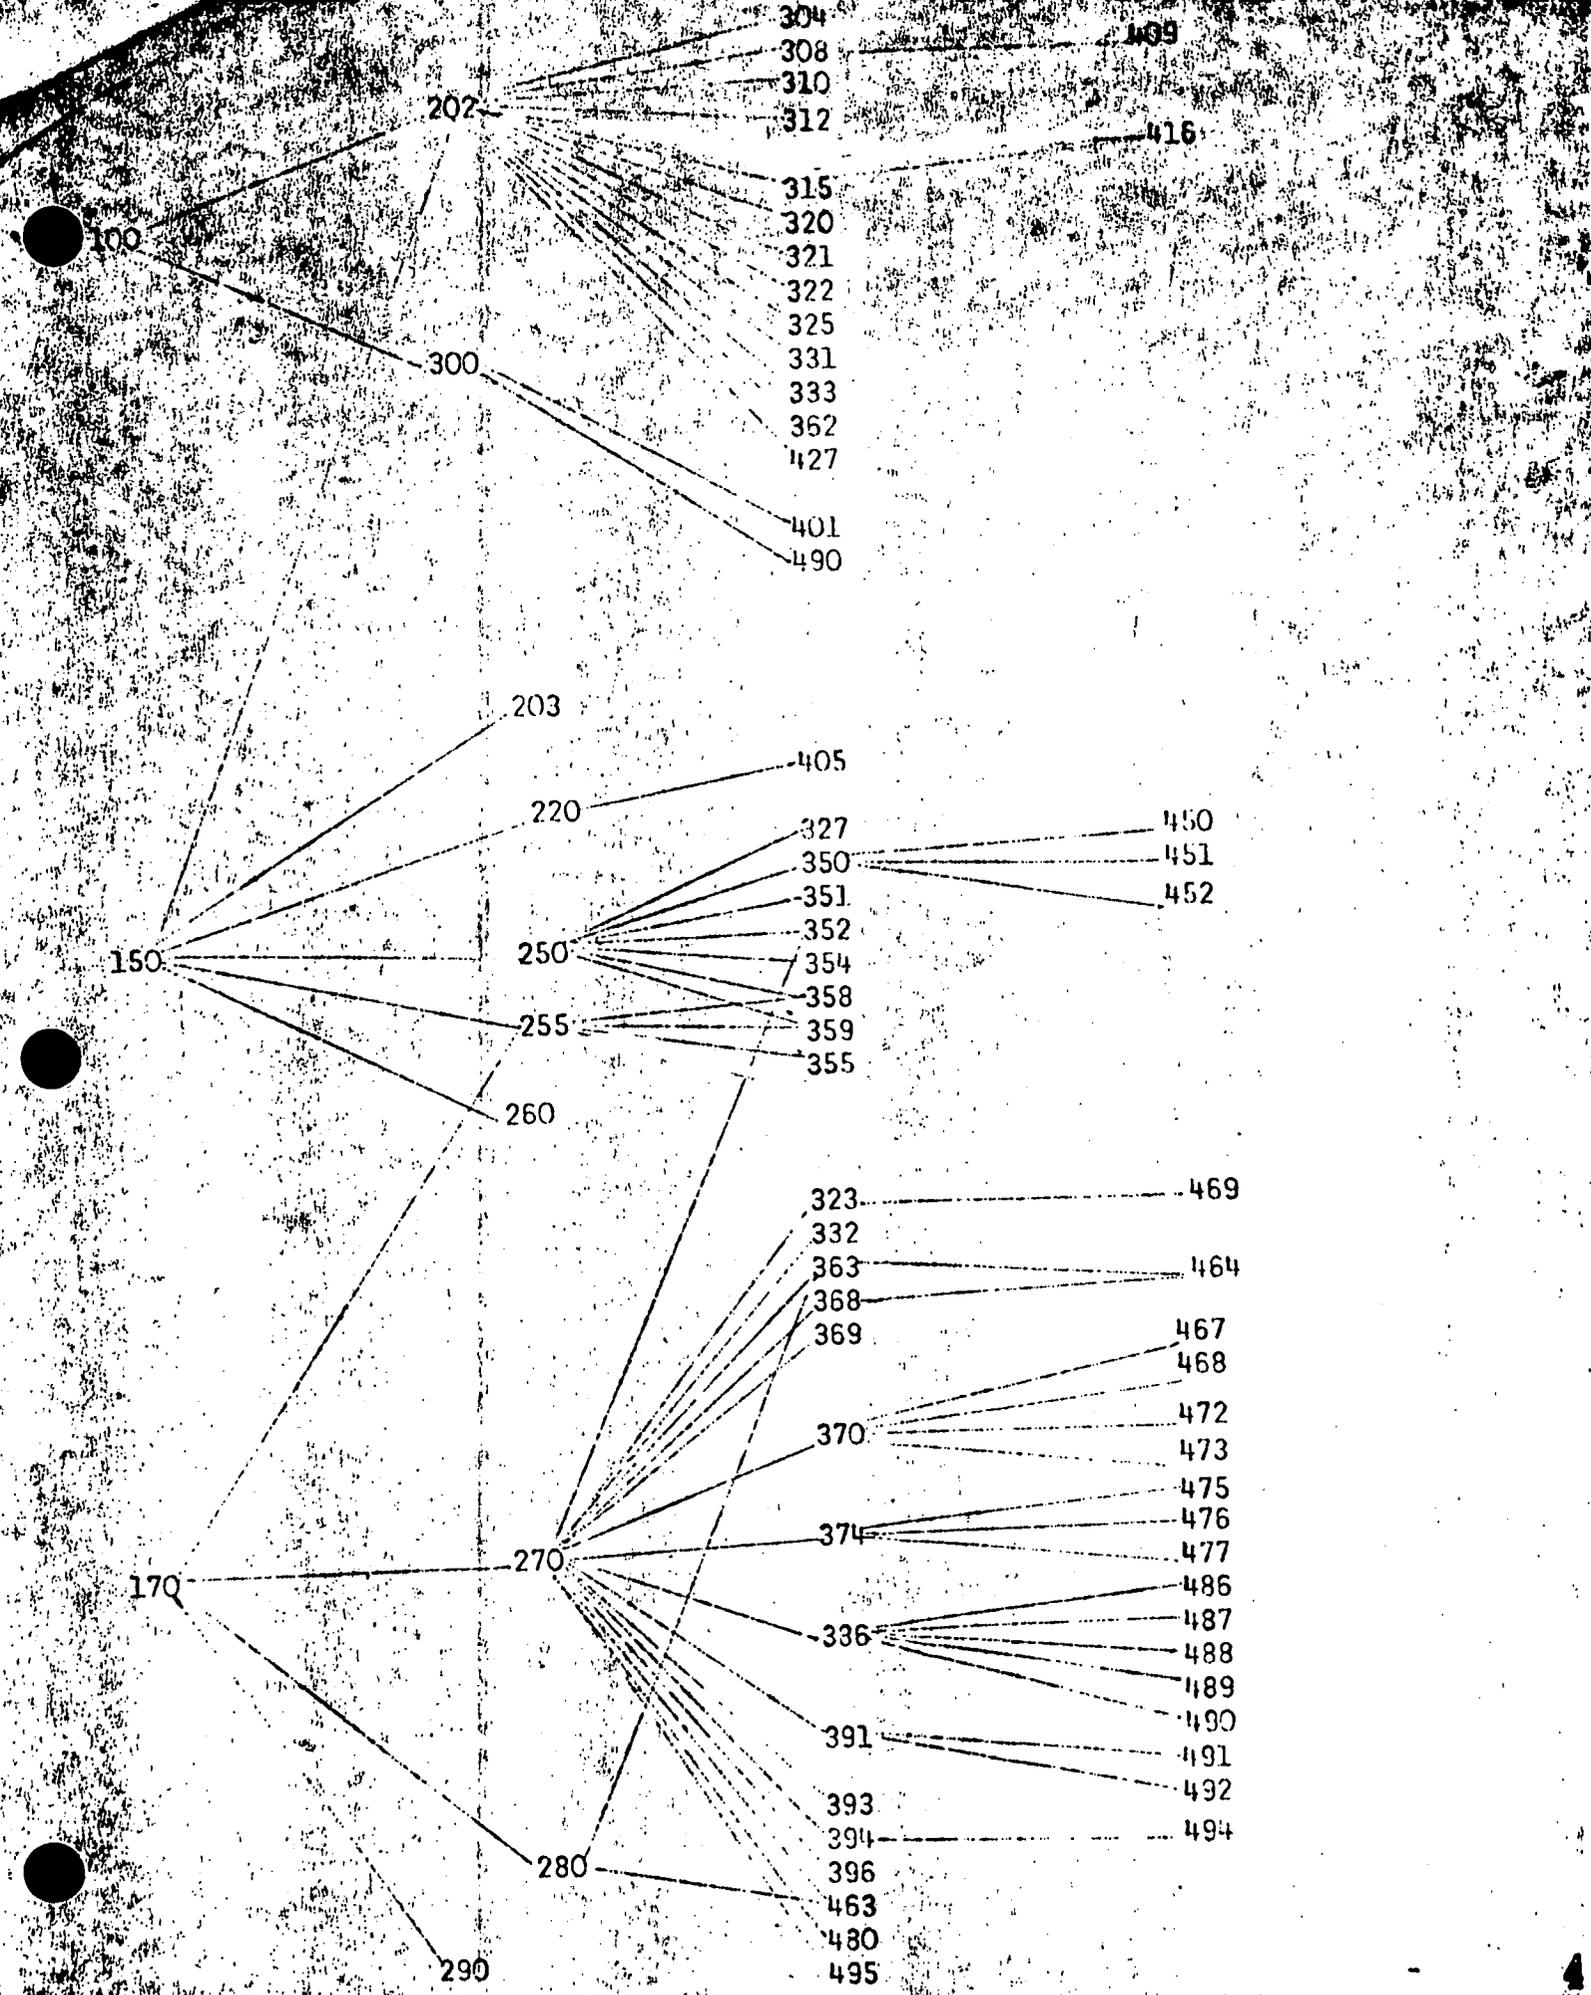

SA 323, 332, 352, 363, 368, 369, 370, 374, 396)for anthropology
391, 393, 394, 396, 463, 480, 495)majors

There is a further group of courses which are methodological:

SA 355, 358, 359

All students completing a major or honor programme in the Department are expected to complete SA 100, 150 and 170, and in order to allow flexibility it is also strongly advised that students complete SA 202, 250, 255 and 270.

At the 400 level the Department offers numerous regional courses including: Africa, Asia, Central & South America and North American Indians.

The following are the areas of specialization for the four new positions which have already been formally requested for September 1975:

- 1) Canadian Society, with particular emphasis on continuing contemporary social issues, such as minorities, labour movements, women or regional disparities.
- 2) Urban anthropology with Third World experience. The candidate must be willing to undertake research among Indians in Vancouver or other centres in British Columbia.
- 3) Either (a) Social Psychology with a clear interest in mass culture; or alternatively (b) Philosophy of the Social Sciences with preferred competence in the Sociology of Knowledge, Sociology of Art or the Mass Media.
- 4) Development theory in Anthropology. Preference to be given to candidates with field experience among Canadian Indians.

Courses listed in the new Sociology/Anthropology curriculum for which the Department does not have existing faculty are as follows: SA 260, 304, 312, 315, 325, 327, 333, 393, 409, 416 and 467.

Taking into account courses which may be taught by the four new faculty already requested for September 1975, there will be remaining approximately eight of these courses still unmanned.

SA 260 and 467 could be taught by a Social Psychologist. Also SA 314 or 315. If the Department only appoints a specialist in the Sociology of Knowledge, he would teach SA 327 instead. Therefore, one or two of these courses will be outstanding for a future appointment.

The main appointment for 1975/76 was to be a person who could teach one or more of the following: SA 304, 312, 315, 325, 409 or 416. It is obvious that no candidate will be competent to teach more than two or three of these, so that at least four, and probably five will remain for a future appointment.

We also ultimately need somebody in the Sociology of Education (SA 333), who might realistically also teach Formal Organizations (SA 312). I would also expect that a specialist in the Sociology of Occupations (SA 409) would also be able to teach Political Sociology (SA 325).

We clearly need another Anthropologist with a specialization in Oceania (SA 393).

From the foregoing it should be clear that our program of recruitment is somewhat flexible since there are a number of areas in which we are deficient, and we would hope to get the best candidate who could meet the standard criteria of recruitment and only secondarily would we be concerned about the additional "specialization". It should be noted that these positions are primarily open to somebody with an expertise in Canada.

The following table expresses the expected recruitment process in terms of courses we would expect successful candidates to teach.

1975/76	1976/77	1977/78
1) either (a) 260 & 467 hopefully with 315 or (b) 327	either (a) 327 or (b) 260 & 467 with 315	333 (and 312 if not already obtained)
2) either (a) 325 or 409 or (b) 315, 416	either (a) 315, 416 or (b) 325 or 409	if third appointment not sanctioned 1976, then 393
3)	393

PROPOSED CURRICULUM FOR SOCIOLOGY & ANTHROPOLOGY

The Department of Sociology and Anthropology offers a variety of courses in each discipline as well as a number of courses which are interdisciplinary to Sociology & Anthropology. The underlying assumption is that some core areas are distinct, while others are common to both subjects and that a well-trained sociologist needs a disciplinary as well as an interdisciplinary education in both fields. This need is particularly evident when the focus of attention is on a particular geographical area or social problem.

In addition, the departmental approach to its subjects attempts to be comparative and historical. For instance, to understand industrial mass culture, particularly in the Canadian context, the student must not only be aware of the empirical data supplied by the disciplines, but also of historical, ideological and social trends throughout the world which influence the Canadian content. Consequently, there is a marked emphasis, particularly in the early courses, on equipping the student with the groundwork of empirical knowledge presented in a historical and comparative perspective. In its later stages the undergraduate programme delineates areas that have in recent years become specialisms within the two disciplines.

This curriculum has been prepared under somewhat unusual circumstances since many of the faculty who will teach the courses are not yet on campus. Inevitably at some point in the future a number of changes will have to be made, hopefully minor in scope and generally involving additions rather than deletions.

The curriculum in its present form has been submitted to external assessors who hold teaching positions in sociology and anthropology at "respectable" Canadian universities, and has received their endorsement.

The aim of the Department in preparing this curriculum has been to cover the main areas that are common to the great number of departments of Sociology and/or Anthropology in Canada, whilst, at the same time, retaining some of the individual features of the old PSA programme. In this we have tried to marry the older somewhat theoretical orientation of PSA with a new emphasis on empirical research. At the same time we have tried to increase the Canadian content and make the programme generally more relevant to present day Canadian students. The emphasis upon Indian and Arctic cultures is one deliberate example of the attempt by the Department to delineate for itself areas of concentration that are generally being neglected in British Columbia. When the new faculty have been together for a few months the Department will attempt to formulate a long term blueprint for subsequent development in these disciplines, and only after that will any additional changes of curriculum be put forward.

REQUIREMENTS FOR A BA DEGREE IN THE
DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY & ANTHROPOLOGY

Lower Levels Requirements (General & Honors Program)

20 semester hours in lower division SA courses.

100 division - SA 100, SA 150 & SA 170 (12 hours)
200 division - minimum of two courses (8 hours)

Upper Levels Requirements (General & Honors Program)

Major Sociology

32 semester hours in upper division SA courses, 20 hours of which must be in Sociology, the remaining 12 hours in Anthropology.

Major Anthropology

32 semester hours in upper division SA courses, 20 hours of which must be in Anthropology, the remaining 12 hours in Sociology.

Joint Major Sociology & Anthropology

40 semester hours in upper division SA courses, 20 hours in Sociology and 20 hours in Anthropology.

Honors Sociology

52 semester hours in upper division SA courses, 32 hours of which must be Sociology, the remaining 20 hours in Anthropology.

Honors Anthropology

52 semester hours in upper division SA courses, 32 hours of which must be Anthropology, the remaining 20 hours in Sociology.

Joint Honors in Sociology & Anthropology

60 semester hours in upper division SA courses. 32 hours in one discipline and 28 hours in the other discipline.

A G.P.A. of 3.5 in all SA courses is required for admission to the Honors program.

All honors students must complete either SA 498 (Honors Semester) or SA 499 (Honors Essay). Students choosing SA 498 will not receive credit for Directed Readings courses (SA 496 or SA 497).

(Note: The credits assigned courses throughout is a function of four General Calendar statements referring to Majors as 30 will in this case require 32. Other general regulations are adjusted accordingly.)

Note: Majors and honors students must have at least one theory course - any one of SA 350, 351, 352, 354, 370, 450, 451, or 452 and at least one course in methodology - any one of SA 355, or 472.

Directed Readings courses (SA 496 & SA 497) are available only to SA majors and honors. Credit will be given for only one of these courses, and only if S.A. 498 is not credited.

Minor Program

Minor Anthropology

12 semester hours in lower division SA courses - 8 hours of which must be Anthropology. 16 semester hours in upper division Anthropology courses.

Minor Sociology

12 semester hours in lower division SA courses - 8 hours of which must be in Sociology. 16 semester hours in Upper Division Sociology courses.
