

To the Senate of Simon Fraser University:

S.92-62

Labour Day, B. C. Day, Thanksgiving, Easter Monday, and Victoria Day all occur on Mondays and have a disruptive effect on Monday classes, especially classes which are held only once per week. This problem is exacerbated in any semester during which a holiday (notably Remembrance Day) falls nominally on a weekend day. We wish to recommend an appropriate remedy for the latter avoidable problem.

Moved:

Future semester schedules should elect Friday for holiday observance instead of Monday whenever a nominal holiday date falls on a Saturday or Sunday, except in the case that the Friday is also the last day of lectures for that semester, in which case the succeeding Monday should be elected.
