The following were approved by the FENV Curriculum Committee at its meeting of April 19, 2011 and are being forwarded to SCUS for approval and recommendation to Senate.

The package includes elements in the redesign of the ARCH undergraduate program. Since the package includes changes to several ARCH Joint Majors that involve units in FASS, I am attaching a joint memo from the Associate Dean of FASS and myself approving the changes, along with email documentation demonstrating the support of the participating FASS units.

In addition, the FENV package includes an NOI for a Certificate in Environmental Literacy. While we realize that new Certificates are not being encouraged at this time, we understand this restriction may be lifted soon. Approval of the NOI will allow us to begin development of a full proposal during the interim.

RE	Faculty of Environment/Faculty of Arts & Social Sciences – Changes to Archaeology Joint Majors Programs
DATE	April 20, 2011

The following changes to the:

- (1) Archaeology and Anthropology Joint Major Program;
- (2) Archaeology and First Nations Joint Major Program;
- (2) Archaeology and Latin American Studies Joint Major Program;

were approved by the Faculty of Environment (FENV) Curriculum Committee at its meeting of April 19,, 2011 after approval by ARCH at a departmental retreat on Oct 29, 2010 and follow-up meeting Jan 13, 2011. At these meetings, Department of Archaeology faculty members approved a series of changes to the undergraduate curriculum to facilitate course delivery with reduced faculty complement and expertise, and to more tightly focus and structure undergraduate programming. ARCH also offers several Joint Majors together with several units in FASS. These programs are jointly administered by the Department of Archaeology (FENV) and the FASS units listed above (Sociology & Anthropology, First Nations Studies and Latin American Studies).

The changes contained in this submission consist of housekeeping changes occasioned by the deletion of courses or other program changes as described in the accompanying submission to SCUS regarding redesign of the ARCH Major and Honours programs.

The changes proposed were approved by Archaeology's Undergraduate Studies Committee and have been endorsed by the participating FASS units [as per attached e-mails].

Would you please place these proposed changes on the agenda of the next meeting of SCUS.

DEPARTMENT OF ARCHAEOLOGY
MEMORANDUM

To: Duncan Knowler, Chair, Faculty of Environment Curriculum Committee

From: David Burley, Undergraduate Curriculum Committee Chair, Archaeology

Re: Dept. of Archaeology Undergraduate Curriculum Items for Review and Approval

Date: April 20, 2011

At a Departmental Retreat on Oct 29, 2010 and at a follow-up meeting Jan 13, 2011, Department of Archaeology faculty members approved a series of changes to the undergraduate curriculum to facilitate course delivery with reduced faculty complement and expertise, and to more tightly focus and structure our undergraduate programs. These changes were submitted to the Faculty of Environment Curriculum Committee and approved with minor revisions at their meeting of April 19, 2011. We accordingly submit the revised program for submission and consideration of Senate. Course additions, deletions and changes should be dealt with initially as program changes are dependent.

New Courses:

ARCH 321-3	Select Regions in World Archaeology I
ARCH 331-3	Select Regions in World Archeology II
ARCH 329-3	Special Topics in Environmental Archaeology
ARCH 339-3	Special Topics in Biological Anthropology

All of the proposed courses are topical courses where content will vary from offering to offering. Consequently we have not included course syllabi since a course specific curriculum is undetermined. Select Regions in World Archaeology indicate that the subject matter will incorporate a survey of culture history and other issues for a specific region of the world (Egypt, Africa, Europe), including the deleted regional courses below (China, Oceania, Latin America, American Southwest). At least one of ARCH 321/331 will be offered on a semester basis, and the region will vary dependent on faculty availability. ARCH 329/339 special topics course content will vary from method, to theory to broadly defined surveys of individual subjects related to Environmental Archaeology or Biological Anthropology. ARCH 329/339 will be offered as expertise and funding may be present. Library review has been completed and the above courses are determined to need no additional resources. PLEASE NOTE - for the library review and in its adjudication, ARCH 321 was submitted as ARCH 330 and ARCH 329 as ARCH 338. Both ARCH 330 and ARCH 338 are numbers for courses being proposed for deletion. Believing this might lead to confusion, the Faculty of the Environment Curriculum Committee recommended a number change at the meeting of 19 April.

Course Changes:

ARCH 301-3	Ancient Visual Art
ARCH 433-3	Background to Field Work
ARCH 434-3	Archaeological Field Methods

Deleted Courses:

ARCH 302-3	Art of Ancient Civilizations
ARCH 311-5	Archaeological Dating
ARCH 330W-3	Prehistory of Latin America
ARCH 334-3	Special Topics in Archaeology III
ARCH 336-3	Special Topics in Prehistoric and Indigenous Art
ARCH 338-3	Archaeology of China
ARCH 360-5	Native Cultures of North America
ARCH 370-3	Western Pacific Prehistory
ARCH 379-3	Archaeology of the American Southwest

Elimination of the writing intensive class, ARCH 330W-3 will have little or no impact for Archaeology students since ARCH 471W-5 is a required core course for all Archaeology majors, joint majors and honors students. Deletions of ARCH 302-3, ARCH 311-5, ARCH 334-3, ARCH 336-3 and ARCH 360-5 are the result of faculty losses and shifting expertise in the department. Because of reduced faculty complement, we no longer are able to offer on a two year cycle ARCH 330W-3, ARCH 338-3, ARCH 370-3 and ARCH 379-3. These courses are being deleted but will be taught on less regular occasion under the newly proposed courses, ARCH 321-3 and ARCH 331-3. We acknowledge the deletion of nine courses as a limitation to program diversity and student electives. We emphasize, nevertheless, that our move to the Faculty of Environment opens up new opportunities for future course development and cross listings to expand, focus and enhance our undergraduate curricula in the future.

Program Changes:

The Undergraduate Curriculum Committee was charged with the task of redesigning the undergraduate program to bring it in line with faculty member expertise, to reorganize course groups in a way meaningful to our new home in the Faculty of the Environment and to change core course or other requirements to facilitate student progress, eliminate potential bottle necks and provide balance in scheduling of electives across groups. We have made changes in four areas relative to Calendar Headings.

Recommended Courses: A small number of additional courses are being recommended for Archaeology majors for reasons given in the calendar entry.

Upper Division ARCH Course Groups: This represents a reshuffling of existing courses into four groups to better reflect course associations and facilitate future course scheduling. As well, two Group 1 core courses have been moved to eliminate potential bottlenecks.

Major Program: Lower division requirements of 12 units are increased to a minimum of 18 units. The additional units are to be taken from 100/200 level electives in Biology, Environmental Science, First Nations Studies, Geography, Resource and Environmental Management and Sociology/Anthropology. The electives provide students going into the major with relevant breadth outside of Archaeology. The increase in lower division unit requirements brings Archaeology into line with many other departments on campus. Upper Division Requirements of 30 Units is increased to 32 Units. Core course requirements are reduced to two courses, with other requirements being electives drawn from each of the newly organized groups. The new requirements provide students with slightly enhanced opportunities to select electives they may be interested in while acquiring a broadly structured undergraduate learning experience.

Miscellaneous Changes: Housekeeping changes occasioned by the deletion of courses or other program changes were required for the Honors Program as well as Joint Majors with First Nations Studies, Latin American Studies, and Anthropology. Each of the Joint Major departments has been informed.

Pending approval from Senate, changes will be effective spring semester 2012. Scheduling of courses and student advisement on program requirements will be accordingly carried out..
