Credits: 2 or 4

Description of the course:

Education 384 builds on a student's approved international or intercultural placement in Canada during April 2006. (Contact Dr. Don Northey at dnorthey@sfu.ca by March 1, 2006 to confirm placement). Through engaging in, and reflecting upon, their educational and personal experiences in these intercultural settings, participants will deepen their global perspectives and understanding of the role of culture in education. This will provide the basis for application in curriculum design and interaction in Canadian classrooms.

Course Expectations:

1. Attend orientation sessions in preparation for practicum experience
2. Attend biweekly seminars during May and June to discuss placement experiences, current application ideas and the potential for developing a global perspective in your future classrooms
3. Reflect upon and share experiences gained during the practicum
4. Demonstrate an openness and willingness to explore issues

5. Integrate new understandings into planning of curriculum experiences
6. Post required assignments on the course website
7. Participate in individual interviews with the instructor to review experiences
8. Complete all assignments as outlined at a competent level

Assignments
