Course description:

This course is designed to introduce the student to the major theories underlying the work of counsellors and educators working with persons with emotional and/or behavioral difficulties. The course will examine theories of counselling and psychotherapy including theories based on psychodynamic, existential, cognitive-behavioral, systemic, feminist, multicultural and developmental frameworks.

Students will have an opportunity to examine these perspectives and their relation to counselling strategies and interventions.

Evaluation:

Assignments in the course will provide students with an opportunity to become familiar with a variety of theoretical approaches and their implications and applications to human behavior and experience. Detailed descriptions of assignments will be distributed at the first class.
