

SIMON FRASER UNIVERSITY
SUMMER SESSION 2008

EDUC 426-4
TEACHING CHILDREN AND YOUTH WITH SPECIAL NEEDS
(E100)

◇ Irina Tzoneva
Office: EDB 7500.5
Email: itzoneva@sfu.ca

Tuesday & Thursday 5:30-9:20
Surrey Campus Room 3040

PREREQUISITE

60 credit hours.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Education 426 is an introductory survey course about children and youth with exceptionalities in Canadian classrooms. The course examines the cognitive, social, and physical differences of children and youth with diverse disabilities, such as communication disorders, intellectual differences, behavioral problems, developmental disorders, etc. The focus of the course is on intervention approaches used to accommodate and assist effectively children with special needs in the classroom.

Learning Outcomes:

1. Become familiar with the terms and terminology used in the special education field.
2. Describe the current trends in special education in Canada.
3. Demonstrate a sound understanding of the cognitive, social, and physical differences of children and youth with diverse special needs.
4. Learn different educational strategies and intervention approaches that are employed with students with diverse special needs in the classroom.

Evaluation:

1. Class attendance and participation in online and face-to-face discussions – 20%
2. Book and movie review (group project) – 30%
3. Book and movie review presentation – 10%
4. Resource Journal – 30%
5. Resource Journal presentation – 10%

Readings:

Winzer, M. (2008). Children with Exceptionalities in Canadian Classrooms. Pearson Prentice Hall. ISBN: 0132223945.