

Fall Semester 1997

EDUC 341 - 3
Literacy, Education and Culture

E1.00

V. Lunga

Office: TBA

Tel: 299-5238

E-mail: lunga@sfu.ca

PREREQUISITE

60 credit hours

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course provides an introduction to the study of literacy from an interdisciplinary perspective. We shall explore the origins of western literacy, the conditions of which favored its development and the role of literacy in social evolution, the economic and cultural values of literacy, and the effects of literacy on cognitive processes. Of particular interest is the reliance on formal educational institutions for the mass transmission of literacy. We will be looking in some detail at the varying conceptions of literacy that educators have traditionally valued, and we will be looking at some of the current research and scholarship that attempts to explain, justify and prescribe educational practices intended to increase literacy, research and practice.

OBJECTIVES

By the end of the course, students should be able to identify, analyze, and justify or criticize the aesthetic, communicative, cognitive and socially-transformative consequences attributed to or associated with the acquisition of literacy. They should know something of its history and be aware of the range of definitions traditionally currently given to literacy. They should have some understanding of the distinctive contributions of conceptual study and empirical research into literacy, and understand both the capacities and limitations of each of these approaches to literacy, research and practice.

REQUIREMENTS

Grades are based on the following components:

1. Essay - 20%
2. Class Presentation and participation - 20% and 10% respectively
3. Final Examination - 50%

REQUIRED TEXTS

Kingten, E. , Kroll,B. & Rose, M. Perspectives on Literacy Southern Illinois University Press.
deCastell, S., Luke, A. & Egan, K. Literacy, Society and Schooling Cambridge University Press, 1986.
Freire, P. & Macedo, D. Literacy: Reading The Word and The World

RECOMMENDED TEXTS

Barton, D., Literacy Blackwell, 1994.
Horseman, J., Something on my Mind The Womens Press.