COURSE DESCRIPTION

- This is an introductory course aimed at beginning students not necessarily already committed to, or interested in, pursuing educational studies.
- The course introduces you to a small but representative sample of questions and issues of importance to education and of interest to educators today.
- You will examine questions relating to: the concept or idea of education; learning and the learner; teaching and the teacher; disciplines and discourses of education; and the broader contexts of education in the global village and the postmodern world.
- You will be introduced to ways of exploring educational questions and issues, from philosophical and critical analysis, to historical and cross-cultural studies, to empirical research.
- The course models a range of instructional strategies, including: lecture, panel-discussion and workshop; discussion and debate; story; case study, and simulation game.
- The course offers a range of learning experiences, including: reading and responding orally and in writing; discussion in tutorial and on-line; library research and field-work.

TOPICS

A detailed outline of topics and presenters will be available at the first class.

REQUIREMENTS

- Weekly discussions on-line and in tutorial - 50%
- Written responses to selected course readings - 30%
- Final exam - 20%
- Regular attendance is required

The completion of course requirements forms the basis for evaluation. The final evaluating process will comprise both your own self-evaluation and evaluation by the course instructor and tutorial leader/s.

REQUIRED READINGS

Readings will be available from the instructor at the first class.
