RATIONALE FOR INTRODUCTION OF THIS COURSE

Digital technology has transformed publishing from an activity carried on by publishers into a social and business activity in which all of society is involved. Our highly praised Publishing 101, Publication of Self in Everyday Life, introduces publishing concepts that provide an analytical and actionable foundation for the social media activities of students. Publishing 201 extends the introduced analytical frameworks to explore the social media practices of corporate bodies such as businesses and organizations offering students the opportunity to discern media practices and acquire skills in the development and implementation of evolving practices on behalf of organizations likely to employ them.

School for the Contemporary Arts
Calendar Changes 2014

Following a major reconstruction of the School for the contemporary curriculum, we are continuing a comprehensive cleaning process of our calendar listings. Based on recent responses to our Honors programs by students in the SCA, we would like to edit (not change) wording on requirements in the upper division for the BFA programs in Film, Theater Performance and Production and Design and Dance.

These changes will cause less confusion to undergraduate students about how many credits are required in these programs.

SCA Honours Calendar Changes 2014

Below are changes to the articulation of the Honours programs for Film, Theatre and Dance areas in the School for the Contemporary Arts. In the 'From' column, the changes are highlighted and crossed out. In the 'To' column, the additions are bolded.

School for the Contemporary Arts
Calendar Changes 2014

In the past year, the school for the Contemporary Arts conducted a major change in the undergraduate curriculum including the removal of nineteen courses. Because of the removal of these courses and the addition of new core courses for the school, we are reviewing our academic calendar course descriptions and updating our pre-requisites.

The following three courses, FPA 245, 270 and 271, have prerequisites that offer too wide of a choice or do not properly prepare students for the specific content included in the courses. We are making these prerequisites clear by identifying the proper lower division courses that fully prepare students for the 200 level courses.

PREREQUISITE

Does this course replicate the content of a previously approved course to such an extent that students should not receive credit for both courses?

If so, this should be noted in the prerequisite.

FROM: Prerequisite: FPA 170 or 171.

PREREQUISITE

TO: Prerequisite: FPA 170.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

RATIONALE

Students should complete 170 (Introduction to Production Technology) before taking 270 and 171 (Introduction to Stage and Production Management) before taking 271. Each series of courses is distinct and should be followed in sequence. The change to the prerequisite for FPA 270 makes this progression clear.
