

SENATE SUMMARY

MEETING OF DECEMBER 7, 2015

1. Report of the Chair

The Chair conveyed regrets from President Petter who, along with VP Research Joy Johnson, is representing SFU in Ottawa with representatives of government and granting councils. The President extends best wishes to Senate for the holidays and looks forward to seeing everyone rested and refreshed early in the New Year.

The Chair noted that SFU and Pacific Blue Cross recently partnered on the use of Big Data to improve healthcare delivery, decision-making, and outcomes. The new Pacific Blue Cross Health Informatics Lab – overseen by Professor Jian Pei, CRC in Big Data Science – will advance computational health research and provide a new venue for collaboration between industry and academia, especially in the area of health informatics. The lab will bring together faculty and student researchers from across the university, including those focused on the application of Big Data to business, health, communications and visualization, and security and privacy.

The Chair announced that from a field of over 550 nominees, Majid Bahrami, CRC in Alternative Energy Conversion Systems in the School of Mechatronic Systems Engineering, was selected for a 2016 Canada Clean50 Award in the research and development category. The award is presented to individuals whose work seeks to combat climate change and raises awareness of the benefits to Canadians of moving to a low-carbon economy. The citation mentions his collaborative work with industry to develop a wide range of sustainable energy solutions and his establishment of the world-class Laboratory for Alternative Energy Conversion.

The Chair noted that this year's SFU Public Square Community Summit – entitled "We The City" – took place in the first week of November. The summit focused on the theme of city building. It featured 16 events in three communities, involved 1400 volunteer hours, drew almost 3,500 participants, and engaged thousands more via webcasts and media. The summit's major public event was a forum on the role of arts in the city at the Downtown Centre, with Candy Chang, Teju Cole, and Buffy Sainte-Marie, moderated by Mo Dhaliwal.

The Chair informed Senate that the 2015 Aboriginal Peoples edition of the SFU News has been published, summarizing progress that has been made over the past year on Aboriginal programs and initiatives. It was noted that copies had been distributed to each Senate station.

The Chair reminded Senate of a communiqué sent earlier in the day, stating that SFU is required by BC Hydro to close the SFU Burnaby campus during daylight hours on Tuesday, December 8, 2015 as a result of the power outage. It was noted that the closure was until noon, and not the entire day.
