3. 2017 Study Abroad Program Statistics (Appendix A)

Statistics report only on International Services for Students' activity.

Reports A and B provide an overview of activity through the Formal Exchange Program, plus activity through special inbound programs and – new for 2017 – outbound study abroad programs that operate outside of an exchange mechanism. Exchange activity was well-balanced in 2017, as the result of intentional efforts to send and receive equal numbers of student terms.

Report C provides an overview of the Field Schools that operated in 2017. As expected, field school activity increased significantly from 2016. The number of students participating in field schools increased by 90% over 2016 as the result of an increase in field school offerings. Three brand new field schools were offered in 2017 (NATO Political Sciences, London & Lake District English, and International Perspective on Cybercrime in Criminology), and one was brought back after a 7-year hiatus (Greece Hellenic Studies).

Report D shows total study abroad program activity by country, which remains similar to 2016. The top five countries with whom SFU had the most activity overall (both inbound and outbound) in 2017 were France, England, Netherlands, Hong Kong, and Italy. The five most popular exchange destinations for SFU students in 2017 were France, England, South Korea, Australia, and Netherlands.

Reports E and F show outbound student activity by faculty and department/program, respectively. As in 2016, the two faculties accounting for the most activity are the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences, and the Beedie School of Business. At the department or program level, the five areas sending the most students are the Beedie School of Business, Political Science, Communication, French, and International Studies. Activity from Political Science increased in 2017 primarily as a result of their new NATO Field School.

4.   International Co-op Program (information from co-op) (Appendix B)
Compared to last year, Fall 2017 saw a huge drop (30% compared to Spring 2016). After looking at the faculty placement list, the largest drop was in the Engineering and Mechatronics Programs (~60%).

5.   SFU International Awards

Chris Dagg Award
12 applications were considered and awarded 1

Griffith University - SFU Travel
SFU received 3 applications and 3 awarded
Griffith received 4 applications and 4 awarded

International Engagement Fund
Received 12 applications and funded 6

Staff Internationalization Fund
Received 6 applications and funded 1

Notes:

*Inbound Study Abroad refers to inbound students who attend SFU for 1 to 3 terms under the terms of a formal agreement with another institution. Students pay international, or in special cirumstances domestic, tuition rates.

*Outbound Study Abroad refers to SFU who students who attend a partner institution for 1 to 3 terms under the terms of a formal agreement with another institution. Students pay tuition fees directly to their host institution.

 Years 1992/93 - 2009/10 were reported by Academic Year (Fall, Spring , Summer). Years 2011 to present were reported by Calendar Year (Spring, Summer Fall). The Fall 2010 term was reported separately.

Over time, annual numbers have been reported in terms of either term counts or unique student counts, as represented above. Beginning in the 2015 calendar year, numbers are reported in both ways.

2017 Statistics: The above unique student counts include some students who began their programs in the 2016 calendar year:
Outbound exchange: 24   Inbound exchange: 42   Inbound study abroad: 3   Special program, Zhejiang: 1
