- 21 SFU researchers were awarded a total of $216,000 from Mitacs' Accelerate, Accelerate Graduate Research Partnership and Globalink Research Award programs.
- 6 SFU researchers were successful in the latest round of NSERC Engage Grants and have collectively garnered $146,000 in funding. These grants allow researchers to undertake short-term research and development projects in collaboration with industry partners.
- Peter Ruben of Biomedical Physiology and Kinesiology received $130,000 from Akseera Pharma Corporation for a collaborative project to determine the effects of CBD (cannabidiol) and THC (tetrahydrocannabinol) on the growth and proliferation of prostate cancer cells.

The Chair reported on recent research awards and honours:

- Arthur Robson of Economics has been appointed a Fellow of the Canadian Economics Association in recognition of his achievements and contributions to the discipline.
- Isabelle Cote of Biological Sciences has won the Murray A. Newman Award for Aquatic Research from the Coastal Ocean Research Institute of the Vancouver Aquarium. The award celebrates those who've made a significant contribution to advancing conservation and research in BC and beyond.

The Chair reported that the 2018 BCTECH Summit came to a successful close. The three-day summit broke attendance records, drawing over 9,000 participants. As an Innovation Partner, SFU was well represented by means of exhibits, research projects and presentations.

The Chair reported that KEY, SFU's Big Data Initiative, is a sponsor of CANHEIT-TECC 2018, the largest gathering of Canadian higher education IT leaders. Nearly 600 experts, thought-leaders and changemakers will converge on the Burnaby campus, with KEY hosting CANHEIT attendees at the Big Data Hub for presentations, breakout meetings, and tours.

The Chair reported SFU's Sustainable Energy Engineering Program received provincial support and approval in May. The 80 student program is set to launch in the fall of 2019, with Kevin Oldknow, professor of Mechatronics Systems Engineering and Associate Dean of FASS, as program director.

The Chair reported that SFU is hosting the 2018 CAUBO (Canadian Association of University Business Officers) conference. In lieu of speaker gifts, a donation is being made to the Pat Hibbits Memorial Bursary/Endowment, who served as SFU's VP, Finance and Administration, for over 14 years.

5. Question Period

No questions were submitted.

6. Reports of Committees

A) Senate Committee on University Priorities (SCUP)

i) Establishment of the School of Environmental Science (S.18-70)

Moved by P. Keller, seconded by C. Percival

“That Senate approve and recommend to the Board of Governors the establishment of the School of Environmental Science within the Faculty of Environment.”

Jon Driver, Dean's Special Projects Advisor, and Jeremy Venditti, Program Director – Faculty of Environment, were in attendance to respond to questions.

A number of Senators, notably from the Faculty of Science and including the Dean of Science, voiced opposition to the establishment of the School of Environmental Science in its proposed form. The concerns raised are as follows:

- The formation of the School will negatively impact departments in the Faculty of Science, particularly the Department of Biological Sciences, by drawing away both students and faculty.

- Despite the statements in the document, discussions between the Faculty of Environment and the Faculty of Science, have only just started, and should have been occurring at a greater depth before the establishment of the School and not after.
- The proposal contains support letters from the Faculty of Environment, but does not include a support letter from the Dean of Science, which is concerning given how important the Faculty of Science is to the Environmental Science Program.
- Consideration should be given to setting up the School jointly between the Faculty of Environment and the Faculty of Science.
- Given the interdisciplinary nature of the Program and the reliance on cross-faculty appointments, the proposal does not discuss how cross-faculty appointments will be handled so as to avoid potential conflicts.
- The Faculty of Science appears to have not been involved in any significant way in the drafting of the administrative structure being implemented to support the students in the Program.

In response to these concerns the following points were made:

- There are currently 300 undergraduate students and 50 graduate students in the Environmental Science Program without a faculty, and with no allocated resources. Consultation has been on-going for a number of years with the Faculty of Environment and the Faculty of Science and a number of modifications have been made to address concerns. Given that consultation could continue in perpetuity it is unfair to those students to further delay the establishment of this School.
- Given that the Environmental Science Program has already existed successfully within the Faculty of Environment for a number of years, the establishment of a School of Environmental Science will not increase the impact on the Faculty of Science.
- Though the Environmental Science Program is interdisciplinary, it should be recognized that disciplines evolve and change over time. Environmental Science has evolved from being highly interdisciplinary into being a discipline defined on its own terms.
- One cannot argue that interdisciplinary programs shouldn't be placed into a single faculty given that both the School of Criminology and the Department of Biomedical Physiology and Kinesiology were founded as interdisciplinary departments.

A concern was raised that the issues brought up at Senate regarding this proposal were not brought up at SCUP. It was added that if there are points of contention to be considered it is better to consider them at the committee level before coming to Senate.

Moved by J. Johnson, seconded by C. Cupples

“That S.18-70 be tabled.”

A question was called and a vote taken.
