5. Question Period

- i) Senator Baharmand submitted the following question:

It was announced at the November Senate Meeting that the degree parchments awarded to students graduating from June 2018 onwards will read the major or the highest degree completed by students. As student senators, we had the pleasure to inform the student audience this update and we did exactly that. The following questions were raised by the students that we interact with. During the meeting of this announcement, I, Iman Baharmand, asked if the degree could be adjusted retroactively and was told they could not because of the possibility of multiple degrees existing. Several students stated that they would be more than willing to bring in their old degrees and pay a fee to get a new one that indicated their major or highest degree conferred. Understanding that this is challenging to make everyone happy with a change like this, and that such process would be logistically demanding, I would still like to ask if the appropriate committee would be willing to explore the possibility of such processes being put into place.

Rummana Khan Hemani, Registrar, responded to this question.

Senate was informed that SFU can accommodate requests for replacement parchments, in the same manner as currently in place. Students will be required to pay a fee for a replacement parchment featuring the most recent degree template, which will include the highest level of study starting in June 2018.

- ii) Senator Baharmand submitted the following question:

It was stated at this meeting that the degree parchment would only display the highest degree conferred. According to my understanding, this is due to concerns with how much text that can fit on the page. However, several questions have been brought to my attention. For example, what would a degree state for joint majors and double majors? It is also clear that a joint major in Molecular Biology Biochemistry and Business Administration will take up more space than a major in Chemistry and Minor in Linguistics. And so several students had questions about these special case scenarios.

Rummana Khan Hemani, Registrar, responded to this question.

Senate was informed that minors will display on the new parchment. Space is a concern in implementing these changes, but consultations with the academic units indicated that minors should appear on the parchment. Also, concentrations integral to the degree will appear, whereas optional concentrations, specializations, and streams will not.

A question was asked to clarify how joint majors would appear on the parchment. Senate was informed that for joint majors the student must still choose which degree is being conferred, but that both major programs would appear on the parchment.

6. Invited Presenter

Eugene Fiume, Dean of Applied Sciences, presented an overview of the Faculty of Applied Sciences, following which he took questions.

A question was asked if Applied Sciences experiences attrition of its female students after having recruited them into the program. Senate was informed that though female attrition within Applied Sciences is a concern, possibly the larger concern is with first year attrition amongst international students. It was noted there is a need to create more realistic expectations of workload and the nature of the programs themselves so students are not overwhelmed entering their first year.

A question was asked to identify the percentage of domestic female students. Senate was informed that the exact numbers were unknown, but that there are a slightly higher percentage of international female students than domestic.

A question was asked to expand on the idea of harmonization mentioned in the presentation, especially in regards to operating on all three campuses. Senate was informed there is a tendency to want to harmonize each of the units onto a single campus, thereby allowing for a more efficient delivery of programs. The goal, however, is to see distinctive programs with students going to Surrey or Vancouver for reasons differentiated from the Burnaby campus. It was noted that work is being done, in consultation with other Faculty Deans, to create greater differentiation across Faculties so that certain joint programs are available only at a particular campus.

7. Reports of Committees

Moved by. D. Leznoff, seconded by C. Percival

“That Senate approves the attached changes to the undergraduate admission requirements for BC high school applicants.”

Cheryl Geisler, Professor - School of Interactive Arts and Technology, Louise Legris, Director - Undergraduate Admissions, and Stephen Spector, Post Retirement Faculty - Beedie School of Business, were in attendance to respond to questions.

A question was asked as to why Physics 12 was selected as a required course for Computing Science. Senate was informed that faculty undergraduate curriculum committees made decisions about courses to be included. In the case of Computing Science the decision went through their faculty level curriculum committee, the Associate Dean, and through SCUS for approval. Also, the decision was based on course data from previous applicant groups which indicated it was an important preparatory course for Computing Science.

A question was asked if statistics were available on how many high schools do not offer enough of the Faculty of Arts & Social Sciences (FASS) required courses, thereby capping admissions from those high schools into FASS. Senate was informed that specific numbers were unknown but that exceptions were made for students coming from high schools not offering certain courses. Also, based on data of students actually admitted into FASS over the last three years, enough courses are included on the list to forgo potential problems.

A comment was made that the motion in S.18-9 delegates authority to SCUS to create the Faculty Course Lists documented in S.18-10.

A question was called and a vote taken.

MOTION CARRIED,
with one abstention noted.
