Rationale for change:

In response to the introduction of new courses in Economics, ECON 113 and 115. ECON 113 and 115 introduce students to many of the same concepts covered in ECON 103 and 105, and either set of courses will provide students with the foundational knowledge needed for a degree in business. Therefore, ECON 113 and 115 are being added as core lower division program requirements that students can take in lieu of ECON 103 and 105.

Name of Program or Name of Faculty Sustainable Business Joint Major School of Resource and Environmental Management, Faculty of Environment
Rationale for change: The Sustainable Business Joint Major (SBJM) was originally designed by the Faculty of Environment (FENV) and introduced in the spring term of 2015 prior to the School of Resource and Environmental Management taking on the responsibility for the Resource and Environmental Management Major/Minor (REM) and Sustainable Development Minor/Certificate (SD) programs. As a result, the environment portion of the SBJM requirements consisted of a wide range of FENV courses that were available at the time. In the meantime, the School for Resource and Environmental Management has revised all its undergraduate programs and developed a considerable number of new REM, SD and Planning (PLAN) undergraduate courses. The proposed changes to the environment requirements of the SBJM aim to bring the program in line with the other REM undergraduate programs and take advantage of the new course offerings. The proposed requirements maintain the spirit of the original SBJM program but consist of a more focused blend of REM and SD core courses that have had substantial interest from business students in the past. We believe that this stronger focus creates a much more attractive and insightful program for prospective students. Furthermore, the stronger focus on REM, SD, and PLAN course helps to better distinguish the SBJM from the Joint Major with Geography, the second joint major between the Beedie School of Business and FENV. Additional minor adjustments (e.g., addition of section on residency requirements) have been made to increase consistency in the presentation of all REM programs.

Rationale for change: There is some overlap in the course requirements for the Professional Kinesiology Certificate (PKC) and the Occupational Ergonomics Certificate (OEC). SFU does not allow the same course to be counted for two different certificates. SFU will allow substitute courses within a certificate to allow two certificates with similar requirements to be taken. Students wishing to pursue both certificates in BPK should consult with the BPK Advisor for assistance in course planning. This statement is already included within the PKC.

Occupational Ergonomics ... Admission Requirements ... The certificate is normally completed within five years of admission to the certificate program. Units applied to one certificate may not be applied to another certificate or diploma. Students who are interested in completing both the Professional Kinesiology Certificate and the Occupational Ergonomics Certificate, should consult the BPK Advisor for assistance in course planning.

Rationale for change:          - CMPT 102 has not been offered by the Faculty of Applied Science since Fall 2018 so it makes sense to remove it as a potential introductory programming course for students in the Statistics major/honours.          - CMPT 129 has also been discontinued, leaving Statistics students with CMPT 125 as their second-level introductory programming course.          - CMPT 127 is no longer required as a corequisite for CMPT 125.
