Calendar Entry Change for Executive MBA

Summary of change: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Splitting Americas Applied Project (previous 696) into two courses as BUS 605 2. Adding New ventures course BUS 664 as option for Vanderbilt courses in Americas stream
Rationale for change: Students participate in the Americas Applied Project over two terms with several interim deliverables. Splitting the course into two offerings of 3 credits each allows instructors to provide students with a mid-point grade after the first term so that students can gain valuable and timely feedback on their progress and interim deliverables, and recognizes the significant work done in the first term of the project. Given the structured nature of this applied project compared to other applied projects offered in Business, it is appropriate for this project course to be on a graded basis. Lastly, our partners at Vanderbilt university have been offering New Ventures as their program topic on a consistent basis. Since this course already exists with a dedicated course number in the Business Academic Calendar, we would like to have it listed so that students can be enrolled under the designated course number when it is offered rather than the special topic number, and have this reflected on their transcript.
Effective term and year: Summer 2024
Will this change impact current students? If yes, what is the plan for current students? These changes formalize and operationalize for future students what is has been done informally for current students.

Calendar Entry Change for [Master of Digital Media]

Summary of changes:

1. Updating 6 core competencies. The academic team for the MDM program has conducted a mini program review that culminated in the identification of 6 competencies that more accurately reflect the program outcomes.
2. Currently, the Master of Digital Media (MDM) program consists of 4 foundational courses, 1 elective course, 3 project-based courses, and an internship for a minimum of 51 units. The MDM program aims to replace the mandatory Visual Storytelling course (3 credits) with another 3-credit elective option. This curriculum change will provide students with the opportunity to enroll in two elective courses instead of one, with Visual Storytelling remaining as one of the potential elective options.

Rationale for changes:

1. While the previous competencies are still embedded in the program, the MDM faculty reviewed and updated the competencies to highlight current industry expectations, and also to communicate more accurately to prospective and current students what they will focus on within the program.
2. Over the last few months, the academic team and faculty have determined there is a need to expand options for electives in the MDM program so that students are able to broaden or deepen their knowledge and expertise. The proposed change will increase electives from 1 to 2 and will provide MDM students with exposure to a more diverse group of industry professionals. Alumni have shared that having the option to take a second elective would be a preferable as many students already have a "visual story" background coming into the program and therefore do not need to take the course. For example, in the current cohort 34 of 50 students have artist and designer backgrounds and have likely had training in visual storytelling ranging from fundamental to advanced. Overall, the proposed change and additional elective will provide students with more options to enhance their breadth of knowledge and master specific subject areas.

Effective term and year:

Summer 2024

Will this change impact current students? If yes, what is the plan for current students?

No. However, beginning in September 2024, The Visual Story course will be offered as one of the elective options for all students to choose.
