RE Revisions to the Minimum Admissions Requirements {SCUS reference 07-19}
DATE March 13, 2007	TIME 9:45:24 AM

Action undertaken by the Senate Committee on Undergraduate Studies at a meeting held March 6, 2007 gives rise to the following recommendation:

That Senate approve the change in Minimum Admission Requirements for all Faculties to read as follows: "The minimum admission average will vary depending on the number of applications received, and on spaces available. The minimum is determined by the respective Faculty, but in no case will be less than 67%."

RE Calendar Minimum Averages
DATE February 28, 2007

At the SCEMP meeting on Wednesday, 15 February, 2006 Nick Heath, former Associate Registrar and Director of Admissions, was instructed to devise proposed new wording for the calendar regarding Calendar Minimum Averages to address the concern that the University was not living up to its stated policy of a minimum average if applicants who achieve the minimum are denied entry to SFU, even though spaces remain unfilled in their chosen program.

Instead of bringing the new wording to SCEMP Nick changed the wording in the 2006/2007 SFU Calendar as follows:

FROM:

Minimum Admission Requirements

The minimum admission average will vary depending on the number of applications received, and on spaces available. In no case will admission be offered to an applicant whose average is less than 67%.

TO:

Minimum Admission Requirements

The minimum admission average will vary depending on the number of applications received, and on spaces available. The minimum is determined by the respective faculty.

As this was never formally approved by SCUS I am proposing the following motion:

MOTION:

"That SCUS approve the change in Minimum Admission Requirements for all faculties to read as follows: The minimum admission average will vary depending on the number of applications received, and on spaces available. The minimum is determined by the respective faculty.
