Faculty of Science

RE: Change in prerequisites for
DIAL: 460, 461

DATE: February 21, 2011

---

The Faculty of Science has approved the following, which must now be considered by SCUS.

Please place these items on the agenda of the next SCUS meeting.

Centre for Dialogue

Change in prerequisites for DIAL: 460, 461

The DIAL courses are offered through the Centre for Dialogue, but the administrative home for these courses is the Faculty of Science. The DIAL 460 and 461 courses have not been used before, largely due to the restrictive prerequisites, but the Centre for Dialogue have had considerable interest from students in offering 460 and 461, especially from students who would like to engage in dialogue and public issues through coursework but are not able to take the full 15-credit Undergraduate Semester in Dialogue (DIAL 390, 391, 392). The Centre for Dialogue and the School of Communications (Zoe Druick chairs their Undergraduate Curriculum Committee), don't think the CMNS prerequisites are necessary, and that students with 45 credit hours would be sufficiently advanced to take either 460 or 461.

Description

FROM:

Focuses on the practical tools and conceptual approaches used in dialogue, with comparisons of the role and impact of dialogue among community, government, corporate, union, First Nations, legal-regulatory, advocacy groups and organizations. Emphasis is on interaction among interest groups and stakeholders, cultures of negotiation and decision-making, techniques of facilitation, and strategies for effective outcomes. Prerequisite: 75 units including either at least two of CMNS 332, 347, 425, 432, 437, 447 or DIAL 390, 391, 392.

TO:

Emphasis is on interaction among interest groups and stakeholders, cultures of negotiation and decision-making, techniques of facilitation, and strategies for effective outcomes. Prerequisite: 45 credit hours and permission of instructor.

RATIONALE:

The intention of DIAL 460 has been to offer a seminar course that uses dialogue to connect public issues, and that is open to upper-level students across the university. The change in prerequisites will make the course more accessible, and increase our ability to engage students with public issues. There is no need for the CMNS prerequisites, and CMNS has no objection to the change. By retaining permission of instructor as a prerequisite, we can insure students have appropriate backgrounds.

Does this course replicate the content of a previously approved course to such an extent that students should not receive credit for both courses? If so, this should be noted in the prerequisite. NO
