

EDUCATION 490-2 DIRECTED STUDIES

Classroom Practices

INSTRUCTOR: Elizabeth Kennedy

FALL 1983 - Prince Rupert

DESCRIPTION:

Most Prince Rupert student teachers will have been involved in undergraduate course work from January 1983 to December 1983. This course is intended to provide participants with an opportunity to return to the classroom prior to Education 405 and to further develop selected skills introduced earlier in their professional program. Participants will spend one day a week in a classroom setting and attend seminars. They will develop and implement a learning contract based upon individual interests and needs.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

Participants will

- a) demonstrate systematic observation skills
- b) establish effective working relationships with pupils and others in the educational community.
- c) participate with objectivity in the assessment of their skills and use feedback from instructors, peers and pupils to improve performance.
- d) demonstrate self-evaluation skills, including reflection, critical analysis, and ability to modify performance.

REQUIRED TEXT:

Good, Thomas L. and Brophy Jere E. Looking in Classrooms. New York: Harper & Row.