MEMORANDUM

ATTENTION Senate Committee for University Priorities DATE October 12, 2012
FROM Norbert H. Haunerland, Associate Vice-President Research PAGES 1/1
RE: Centre and Institute Report 2011/2012

As specified under SFU Policy R 40.01 "Research Centres and Institutes," I am pleased to submit to the Senate Committee for University Priorities (SCUP) the annual report on the activities of the Research Centres/Institutes. A copy of the Policy is also attached for your reference.

The report covers primarily the fiscal year 2011/2012. It consists of two parts: a description of each Centre covered under the Policy, and a table showing the status of each Centre in several important areas. In addition, information on Research Centres/Institutes that were either established or dissolved since the end of fiscal year 2011/2012 are included.

Centres are divided into two categories, according to the Policy:

- Research Centres are under the direct authority of the Faculty Deans. The Deans report to the Vice President Research on the Centres under their authority. The enclosed status report indicates the degree to which the reports of the Centres are found by the Dean to be adequate.
- Research Institutes either have a university-wide mandate or comprise multi-university consortia in which SFU participates. The Vice-President, Research is responsible for these Institutes. These are also included in the status report.

As requested by the Senate Committee on University Priorities on November 23, 2011, included in the Status Report is the renewal date of each Research Centre/Institute.

The annual reports were prepared online for the fifth time, the full reports can be viewed in the office of the Vice-President, Research.

Motion:

That SCUP approves the Research Centres and Institutes Report and forwards the report to Senate and the Board of Governors for information.

Director: Mila B Lazarova M.S., Ph.D. (Rutgers) International Business Masters (Univ. Nat'l & World Econ., Bulgaria), 778.782.7720 Tel; jkimq@sfu.ca, <http://business.sfu.ca/cgws/>

The Centre for Global Workforce Strategy will carry out multidisciplinary research on issues surrounding effective work force management strategies. It will initially consolidate the activities of three ongoing multinational research projects. The first project, The Cultural Intelligence Project, involves participants from 12 countries in defining, developing, and validating an instrument to measure Cultural Intelligence – the measure of an individual's ability to interact effectively with the cultural aspects of an environment. It is a key competency requirement for the management of cultural diversity. The second project is Canadian participation in Cranet (the Cranfield Network on Comparative Human Resource Management). Established in 1989, Cranet is an expanding group of top business schools and academic institutions collaborating to provide unique and rigorous data on human resource management practices across the world. Researchers carry out a regular international survey of organizational policies and practices and provide benchmarks for a systematic comparative analysis of trends in HRM policies and practices. Cranet is a unique resource for researchers, management practitioners, and policy makers, seeking an up-to-date overview of HR management's ever-changing global face. The third project involves the study of bicultural individuals in organizations. Given the changing patterns in the world's workforce it is increasingly possible that more employees and managers will be bicultural. Bicultural individuals have a dual pattern of identification with different cultures. The ability of biculturals to operate within more than one culture as a native raises a number of interesting and important questions for global workforce management. As the Centre develops additional themes within the overall mandate of the Centre will be added.

Other Centre activities will include:

- Practitioner forums, media outreach, and academic conferences
- Publication in traditional scholarly venues
- Preparation and distribution of educational material for use by universities and professional associations
- Outreach and networking activities, such as the hosting conferences or public forums on topical subjects, and workshops to promote the activities and findings of the Centre to both academic and business audiences
- Regular offerings of professional development programs

CELS works primarily with teachers and prospective teachers, school administrators, and educational and legal organizations to help fulfill its mandate. Projects include: research into cyber-bullying/cyber-kindness; support for a school for high risk youth; investigating the ethics of care and justice in school settings; investigating youths' legal literacy; assessing students' and teachers' understanding of human rights, citizenship, identity and sustainability. Projects vary from year to year, depending on the needs of the educational community, the Centre's priorities, and the ability to obtain external funding. Three Undergraduate law-related courses, one Graduate course, and a new Master's program in Justice, Law and Ethics have been developed and are offered through the Faculty of Education. The Undergraduate courses also are available through Distance Education. The Centre attracts a number of graduate students interested in human rights, social justice, citizenship education, the ethics of care, and school culture.

David Wheeler Institute for Research in Mathematics Education is a research group at Simon Fraser University, combining and integrating a variety of humanistic and scientific approaches in different areas related to Mathematics Education. The institute's mission is to generate and share knowledge about acquiring mathematical literacy and understanding at all ages and to advance humanity by enriching the lives and options of learners. Current research projects focus on mathematics teacher education in both cognitive and affective domains, on mathematical anxiety, on aesthetics of mathematical experience and on uses of computer technology that promotes learning and teaching. We also have a special interest in advancing knowledge about the learning of mathematics in general, and situating this knowledge within the lived experiences of learners. We aim to do this by reaching out and drawing on international expertise in a variety of research initiatives. Through community outreach in real world settings, we strive to promote effective change that meets the needs of students, teachers, parents, and the community at large. We believe in integration of research and practice; as such our outreach programs provide a platform for conducting classroom research and for implementing research results in practice. An important part of this process is ongoing collaboration among researchers and teachers and school districts, as well as the creation of partnerships with the families, administrators, and policy makers who will potentially benefit from our research.

Sustainable community development aims to integrate economic, social and environmental objectives in community development. Sustainable community development is based on a consideration of the relationship between economic factors and other community elements such as housing, education, the natural environment, health, accessibility and the arts. SCD has emerged as a compelling alternative to conventional approaches to development, a participatory, holistic and inclusive process that leads to positive, concrete changes in communities by creating employment reducing poverty, restoring the health of the natural environment, stabilizing local economies, and increasing community control. The SFU Centre for Sustainable Community Development (CSCD), formerly the Community Economic Development Centre, was founded in 1989. The Centre's mission is to support the sustainable development of communities through education, research and community mobilization; it provides research, training and advisory services throughout BC and Canada as well as internationally. The CSCD offers an undergraduate certificate and post-baccalaureate diploma (also available through distance education), graduate support, and non-credit professional programs.

Co-operative Resource Management Institute

Director: Sean Cox BSc (Massachusetts, Lowell), MSc, PhD (Br Col), 778.782.5778 Tel, 778.782.4968 Fax; spcox@sfu.ca, <http://www.rem.sfu.ca/crmi>

The Cooperative Resource Management Institute (CRMI) is a unit on the Burnaby campus that houses personnel from natural resource management agencies. The Institute can facilitate solutions to difficult multidisciplinary issues in resource management by providing an environment where personnel from different management agencies such as forestry, fisheries, and wildlife can work side-by-side along with Simon Fraser University faculty, graduate students, post-doctoral fellows, and research associates on a daily basis. The university benefits from greater concentration of expertise in environmental management on campus and from new opportunities and funding for multidisciplinary, collaborative research programs. Graduate students and other young scientists also gain valuable experience working with agency scientists. The agencies involved with the Institute benefit from cooperative work with SFU researchers, often on topics that would otherwise not have been investigated due to staff shortages in the agencies. The Institute has thereby proven to be an excellent example of the classic "win-win" situation.

The ultimate goal is to improve/develop objective diagnostic procedures translating into better pedagogical applications and more specific cognitive, pharmacological and surgical interventional therapies.

Some of the main objectives of the institute are to:

- raise awareness in the significance and necessity of human brain imaging, facilitate the expansion of necessary multimodal imaging infrastructure and software development, and facilitate training, design, use and advanced analysis of brain imaging technologies.
- understand the relationships between behavior, cognition and their neurobiological substrates.
- understand the brain development and life-long plasticity of brain and behavior.
- understand the nature of the deficits and spared capacities that are specific to particular syndromes and developmental disorders.
- develop diagnostic markers that can be related and translated into specific cognitive, pharmacological and surgical interventions.

- co-ordinate initiatives to further secure world-class collaborative neuroscience research tools and facilities among universities and hospitals in BC.

Working Group on Education for Sustainable Development (Walking the Talk), and its newly developed research arm, the UN chartered BC North Cascades Regional Centre for Expertise (RCE) in Education for Sustainable Development (ESD) with its associated research and development activities. The institute develops and supports research on environmental learning in communities, schools and post-secondary institutions throughout the Province of British Columbia. Our view is that education is fundamentally about values, with respect at the centre: respect for others, including those of present and future generations, respect for difference and diversity, respect for the environment, and respect for the resources of the planet we inhabit.

Institute for Intersectionality Research and Policy

Director: Olena Hankivsky BA (Tor), MA, PhD (WOnt), 778.782.5182 Tel, 778.782.5288 Fax, iirp@sfu.ca, <http://www.sfu.ca/iirp/index.html>

The Institute for Intersectionality Research and Policy (IIRP) anchors a vibrant interdisciplinary community of scholars, researchers and students who have moved to the forefront of intersectional scholarship in Canada. The Institute provides opportunities to collaborate with other organizations, Centres, and Institutes at SFU and beyond who are developing intersectionality as a framework for research and policy.

When the Institute was first launched in 2005 as the Institute for Critical Studies in Gender and Health at SFU, our overall goal was to integrate and support health and natural sciences, social sciences, and humanities research utilizing intersectionality to better understand how gender relates with other axes of discrimination and disadvantage in multiple contexts. Throughout the subsequent years of doing this work, there has developed an increased awareness of the role played by multiple relational factors when trying to understand and respond to the complexities of health inequities. Intersectionality is a research and policy paradigm that is increasingly applied to study and respond to the complexity of people's lives and how different social locations affect our health and access to care.

As we have grown, the Institute has moved to the forefront of intersectional scholarship in Canada, and is now able to provide opportunities to collaborate with other organizations, Centres, and Institutes at SFU and beyond who are developing intersectionality as a framework for health research and policy. In order to better reflect the current debates, methods, and perspectives within the field of health research and policy, and to support these emerging opportunities for collaboration across Canada and internationally, in January 2011, we changed our name to the Institute for Intersectionality Research and Policy.

The mandate of the Centre is to promote human rights, the rule of law, democracy and good governance in criminal law and the administration of criminal justice, domestically, regionally and globally. Through its activities, the Centre contributes to the priorities of Canada and the United Nations in the field of criminal law and criminal justice.

International Centre of Art for Social Change

Co-Director: C. Snowber BA (SWMass), MA (Gordon-Cornwell), PhD (S Fraser), 778.782.4453 Tel, 778.782.3203 Fax; Co-Director: L. Fels BA (Qu), MA (Car), PhD (Br Col), 778.782.8559 Tel, 778.782.5098 Fax; Co-Director: Judith Marcuse LL.D(Hon.) (Simon Fraser), 778.782.8850 Tel, 778.782.5098 Fax; info@icasc.ca <http://www.ICASC.ca/>

Judith Marcuse Projects and Simon Fraser University (with Continuing Studies and the Faculty of Education) have partnered to establish the International Centre of Art for Social Change (ICASC). The Centre is a global hub designed to support the growing field of art for social change. Its programs include courses, workshops, public engagement and networking events and research.

International Cybercrime Research Centre (ICRC)

Director: Rob Gordon BA (La Trobe), MA (S Fraser), PhD (Br Col); 778.782.4305 Tel, 778.782.4140 Fax; rgordon@sfu.ca <http://www.sfu.ca/~icrc/>

The International Centre for Cybercrime Research is a joint venture of Simon Fraser University and the Province of BC. The ICRC is a focal point for collaboration among cybercrime researchers from universities, government agencies, NGOs, and private sector organizations. The Centre brings together SFU faculty researchers, researchers from other Canadian and international universities, relevant government agencies, and private sector organizations to address issues related to countering criminal activity within cyberspace; projects are concerned with child pornography, child exploitation, and terrorism, among other issues. The Centre also conducts research into Internet economic crimes such as Warez groups, social networking-related crimes and analysis of ongoing trends. One of the initial projects planned by the Centre is to develop virus scanner-like tools to detect child exploitation images. Cybercrime is a huge and mostly unreported problem, with child pornography and identity theft as the most serious issues. Even when reported, there are significant law enforcement and prosecutorial problems principally because of the global nature of the phenomenon. For example, a fraud aimed at Canadian seniors can be triggered by individuals in another country on behalf of individuals in a third country and be passed through a server in a fourth country.

Nanomed Canada Research Network

Director: N. Branda BSc (Tor), PhD (MIT), Canada Research Chair, 778.782.8061 Tel, 778.782.3765 Fax; nbranda@sfu.ca <http://www.nanocomm.ca/>

The NanoCommunity Canada Research Network is a growing community of nanotechnology researchers (chemists, physicists, mathematicians and engineers), government organizations, and industry professionals committed to sharing knowledge and working collaboratively to advance research in a breadth of topics in nanotechnology. NanoCommunity Canada is using the momentum behind social networking platforms to create a virtual community, where information can be exchanged and accessed anywhere and anytime. Members will be able to post their nanotechnology related questions to a wide audience of experts and peers in the field. The discussion from the community will give the answers context and offer a fuller understanding of the issues at hand. The content of the site will be amassed through the dialogue and exchange of ideas between members. The membership and expertise will reach out to the fringes of the nanotech community, thus allowing members to tap into a source of information outside of their established network. Features of this network will include a rating system, where members can build credibility in the network through the feedback of their peers. The network will benefit from active users, but also consist of a standing panel of experts. The referral system is built into the network and allows for existing members to refer questions and topics outside of the community to their own network of experts. Thus, this community has potential for growth and will naturally become a leading source for nanotechnology researchers. Once this virtual community is in place and is noted for providing value to the community, it is anticipated that the network will grow and stimulate more and more collaboration among academic, government and industry members. NanoCommunity Canada will become known as a warehouse of information on Canada's nanotech industry. This will enable it to play a matchmaking role between companies and researchers, which will facilitate technology transfer. It is anticipated that companies would contact NanoCommunity Canada for recommendations on obtaining certain types of expertise from universities, and university researchers would contact NanoCommunity Canada to get a list of companies that would be interested in a particular technology that they have patented.

Pacific Institute for the Mathematical Sciences (PIMS)

Director: Nils Bruin PhD (Leiden), 778.782.6655 Tel, 778.782.4947 Fax; sfu@pims.math.ca, <http://www.pims.math.ca/>

The Pacific Institute for the Mathematical Sciences (PIMS) is dedicated to promoting all aspects of the mathematical sciences by stimulating, coordinating and facilitating the activities of mathematical and computational scientists. This is achieved by

- promoting research in mathematical sciences areas
- initiating and promoting mathematics education at all levels: K-12 and university
- initiating collaborations and strengthening ties between mathematical scientists in the academic community and those in the industrial, business and government sectors
- training of highly qualified personnel for academic and industrial employment
- developing new technologies to support research, communication and training in the mathematical sciences.

Through the strength and vitality of its programs, PIMS is able to serve the mathematical sciences community as a catalyst in many areas of significance: communication and dissemination of mathematical ideas through public outreach, mathematical education and training at all school levels; and creation of strong mathematical partnerships and links. PIMS involves scientists in several faculties at Simon Fraser University faculties including the Faculties of Science, Applied Sciences, and Education. The PIMS community includes specialists in mathematics, statistics, computer science, mathematical physics, biology, chemistry, economics, operations research, management, engineering, and other fields involving mathematical methods. In addition, PIMS involves teachers in the mathematical sciences at all levels. PIMS-SFU is the Simon Fraser University representative of PIMS and shares the goals and ideals of PIMS generally while also meeting the specific needs of the mathematical sciences community at this University.

Subject: Research Centres and Institutes

1.0 Purpose:

The purpose of this policy is to define Research Centres and Research Institutes, the intended scope of their activities, and their required governance and reporting structures.

2.0 Definitions

Research Centres are non-departmental academic or administrative units established for the purposes of facilitating collaborative research mainly within a Faculty.

Research Institutes are created to facilitate collaborative multi-disciplinary research between different Faculties and/or multi-university initiatives and to provide research-related services to the community.

SCUP is the Senate Committee on University Priorities, the academic body responsible for overseeing Research Centres and Institutes on behalf of Senate.

3.0 Policy:

3.1 The purposes of Research Centres and Research Institutes encompass, but are not limited to facilitating collaborative research, especially multi-disciplinary research, and facilitating multi-university initiatives.

3.2 Each Research Centre and Research Institute is subject to all applicable University policies.

3.3 A Research Centre or a Research Institute is entitled to identify itself as a part of Simon Fraser University and to use the University's name and address in the conduct of its activities.

3.4 These rights are granted at the discretion of Senate for fixed, renewable terms.

3.5 Governance and Reporting

3.5.1 The Director of a Research Centre reports to a Faculty Dean, who is responsible for overseeing its governance and budgetary accounts. A list of all Research Centres under the authority of a Dean appears in Appendix I.

3.5.2 The responsible Dean, acting in consultation as appropriate with other university administrators, shall review each Research Centre's activities annually including its financial management and compliance with university policies, and shall report the results of that review to the Research Centre's Director and to the Vice President, Research by August 31 of each year.

3.5.3 The Director of an SFU-based Research Institute reports to the Vice President, Research. The Vice President, Research shall be responsible for overseeing all Research Institutes in which Simon Fraser University participates as a part of a multi-university consortium. The activities of Research Institutes shall be reviewed directly by the Vice President, Research. A list of all Research Institutes with a University-wide mandate appears in Appendix II.

3.5.4 The Vice President, Research shall deliver to the Senate Committee on University Priorities (SCUP) by October 31 of each year a summary report dealing with the activities of all Research Centres and Research Institutes during the preceding year. SCUP shall forward this report for information to the Senate and to the Board of Governors.

3.6 Establishing, Reviewing and Discontinuing Research Centres and Research Institutes

- 3.6.1 With the application for the establishment of a Research Centre or Institute, a Constitution must be submitted that specifies the following:
- a. a statement of its special purpose;
 - b. a provision for the appointment of a Director;
 - c. a statement recognizing the obligation to conduct its activities in accordance with University policies; and
 - d. a statement of its internal governing procedure.
 - e. For Research Centres, the application must be approved by the appropriate Faculty Dean.
- 3.6.2 Applications shall be submitted to the Vice President, Research, who will forward supported applications to Senate (through SCUP) for approval.
- 3.6.3 Research Centres and Research Institutes will normally be established for a term of 5 years.
- 3.6.4 Renewal will be upon application via the Dean and the Vice President, Research, to SCUP, and will be contingent on past performance, financial sustainability, and its continuing purpose.
- 3.6.5 In considering applications for renewal, the accomplishments of Research Centres and Research Institutes will be measured against their stated initial goals and plans. Specifically, the impact must be demonstrated of a Research Centre or Institute in enhancing research over and above what would have been accomplished by individual faculty members.
- 3.6.6 The Dean(s) of the Faculties involved and the Vice President, Research will comment on the report and recommend renewal or termination. The proposal will then be forwarded to SCUP, which will vote on the renewal application and report its decision to Senate.
- 3.6.7 The Vice President, Research may recommend to the President termination prior to the end of the term of a Research Centre or Institute. In such cases, the Director shall have an opportunity to appeal the recommendation before the President makes a final decision.

3.7 Rights and Obligations of Research Centres and Research Institutes

- 3.7.1 Acting under the authority of its Director, and subject to section 3.4.1c, Research Centres and Research Institutes have the right to:
- a. use the University's name, address, and symbols in connection with its activities;
 - b. solicit external grants and contracts in the University's name;

 - b. submit a written report to the responsible Dean or Vice President, Research on the units' activities, including all contractual obligations entered into by or on behalf of the unit, once annually for the twelve months ending March 31 of each year, by no later than June 30 of each year;
 - c. submit an annual financial statement showing revenues and expenditures for the twelve months ending March 31 of each year, by no later than June 30 of each year.
 - d. Normally, the Director is not entitled to teaching relief or financial compensation.

3.8 Membership

3.8.1 The Director of a Research Centre or an SFU-based Research Institute normally must be a continuing faculty member of the University.

3.8.2 Faculty, graduate students, and research associates are eligible for membership in Research Centres and Research Institutes.

4.0 Scope:

4.1 This policy encompasses all Research Centres, Research Institutes, and similar organizations at Simon Fraser University that are not parts of established administrative units.
