RE:

ENGL 100-level W/B-Hum designation approval

The University Curriculum Office has approved the W and B-Hum designations for the suite of newly proposed 100-level English courses, effective Fall 2016 (1167):

ENGL 111 - Literary Classics

ENGL 112 - Literature New

ENGL 113 - Literature and Performance

ENGL 114 - Language and Purpose

These four courses are to replace ENGL 101W/B-Hum, 102W/B-Hum, 103W/B-Hum, and 104W/B-Hum.

Additionally, ENGL 105W/B-Hum is to undergo a course number and title change, although content and pedagogy will remain the same. Therefore the attendant W/B-Hum designations are approved for the transition to:

ENGL 115 - Literature and Culture

effective Fall 2016 (1167).

Library Course Assessments

The Library participates in the course approval process for new courses at both the undergraduate and graduate lavels. By Senate motion ($.93-11) "no new course should be approved by Senate until funding has been committed for necessary library materials." A Library review should be conducted after new course proposals have been approved by the department or school curriculum committee, before being considered by the Faculty curriculum committee. New courses will not be approved at the Senate Committee on Undergraduate Studies (SCUS) or Senate Graduate Studies Committee (SBSC) until a Library review has been completed. Even if the department states that no new library resources are required, a report from the Library is required to confirm this view.

To submit course proposals for review by the Library, forward the following materials to Megan Crouch @ lib-coursessesment@sfu.ca imailto.lib-coursessessment@sfu.caj.

- · course proposal forms
- · complete course outline
- · reading list created for the course, if any
- · date of Feculty curriculum committee meeting for other deadline for library reports

Please send the above materials at least two weeks prior to your deadline.

An assessment will be done to evaluate whether the Library's holdings and present collection development activities are adequate to support the new course. If no new library resources are required, the course will be added to the appropriate list below indicating the library is adequately resourced to support the course.

If additional library resources are required, a full report will be created and linked below, and the associated costs will be identified. The costs may be one-time, to fill gaps in holdings, or engoing, for example, to start new journal subscriptions, or sustain book collecting in areas not now included in the Library's collection acope. If costs are attached, the department or school is asked to transfer the required funds to the Library's materials budget. Questions about the process can be directed to Megan Crouch 6 lib-coursessessment@sfu.cal.

No additional Library resources required

Unless otherwise indicated, these courses require no additional library resources based on a course location of SFU Burnaby. In many cases, if the courses were to be offered at SFU Surrey or Vancouver or as off-campus courses, additional Library costs might be involved. Please contact Megan Crouch.

Dear Anil.

I have reviewed the proposal for POL 200: Investigating Politics: Research Design and Qualitative Methods. No additional library resources will be required to support it.

The course will therefore be added to the appropriate list at http://www.lib.stu.cz/czilections/course-assessments
As we are currently in the middle of a web site redesign, I cannot update that page right now, but will do so as soon as possible. In the meantime, this email will be enough to indicate library sign-off as it moves through the approval process.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

We are designating this course to teach students introductory quantitative methods in political science. The title differentiates it from the new POL 200 course on research design and qualitative methods. It also differentiates it from POL 315, which is a more advanced quantitative methods course. For the next curriculum committee changes, we will be changing the title of POL 315 to Intermediate Quantitative Methods in Political Science for symmetry.

Rationale for Political Science Calendar Changes

The Department of Political Science wants to introduce new lower division requirements, beginning in the Fall 2016 semester.

Our objectives are twofold. First is to provide Honours, Majors, and Extended Minors with a stronger and broader learning set of basic areas of Political Science. Second is to provide a transparent sequence of course progression through which students complete their requirements.

We want all students to proceed from the basic introduction course (POL 100 or POL 101W) to the following topics which are taught in one course each: Investigating Politics: Research Design and Qualitative Methods (POL 200), Quantitative Research Methods in Political Science (POL 201), and Introduction to Political Philosophy (POL 210).

We also want students to achieve a higher minimal level of competence in these four required courses to better prepare them for upper division courses. Therefore, we are raising the necessary grade to apply these courses to the Honours, Majors, and Extended Minors degrees from a D to a C. For the POL minor, students would need to earn a C in POL 100/101W.

Beyond these four courses, we require students to choose one course with Canadian Politics contents from a selected list of courses we offer (POL 221, 222, 223, 251, 253). In addition, we require students to broaden their preparation for political topics beyond Canada by taking either the introduction to Comparative Politics (POL 231) or the introduction to International Politics (POL 241) course.

We require students to take 21 lower division units (instead of 18), thus requiring them to take one more course in addition to the above in a topic of their choice. The proposal requires 21 units at lower division for honours and majors which is well within the practiced norm at SFU.

We have more clearly divided the material taught in Research Design and Quantitative Analysis into two courses. In this proposal students must first pass the Investigating Politics: Research Design and Qualitative Methods course (POL 200) before they complete the Quantitative Research Methods in Political Science course (POL 201). We are adding POL 200 course (deleting POL 202) so that students can easily grasp the sequence.

The new required path of courses and the variety of core content will give students a well-rounded footing in the study of Political Science and prepare them to specialize in all sub-fields at upper division level.

These changes entail adding POL 200 and deleting POL 202 as detailed below.

In addition, the Department wishes to make the presentation (write up) of its upper division requirements and courses clearer to students. Please note that these changes do not constitute new courses or requirements.

RE:

Curriculum Change, Program in Public Administration and Community Service

(FCP) - REVISED

At its meeting on March 23, 2015, the Political Science Department approved course changes for a new mandatory course POL 200 and for POL 201 (see revised proposal by POL dated September 21, 2015):

- All POL students need to follow a course in "Investigating Politics: Research Design and Qualitative Methods (POL 200) and "Quantitative Research Methods in Political Science (POL 201).

These changes impact the Program in Public Administration and Community Service (French Cohort Program). At its meeting on April 8, 2015, the FCP Steering Committee approved that the changes be applied as well to the French Cohort Program:

- a) Since POL 200 is now a prerequisite for POL 201, this course needs to be added to our mandatory course sequence.
- b) Students will now be required to take 21 lower division units in POL (instead of 18).

The changes apply likewise to students doing a POL Major or a POL extended Minor and apply therefore to all students registered in the French Cohort Program. They should take effect in September 2016 (1167).

Please place this proposal on the agenda of the next meeting of the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences Undergraduate Studies Curriculum Committee.

Regards.

Bettina B. Cenerelli
