RE : Deleted Course Repeat Policy

DATE : September 7, 2010

TIME 3:07 PM

Proposal

The University closes down programs and deletes courses from time to time, which may leave students unable to repeat a course to improve their grade as per the University's policy.

The policy regarding repeated courses should include language that deals specifically with this situation so that students, advisors and departments know what can be done.

Current languageRepeated Simon Fraser University Courses

Where a student repeats a course, the course(s) with the lower grade will be recorded on official records as an excluded course. If the same grade or grade equivalent value is earned for a repeated course, the course that was completed most recently is included in the term grade point average (GPA) and cumulative GOPA, and the former course is excluded in the term GPA and cumulative GPA. A student's academic standing for previous terms does not change even though the GPA changes.

When a course is repeated and the unit value has decreased, the student must, in consultation with the department, make up the missing unit component before being credited with the full original units.

Proposed addition

When a course is deleted by the University, the department, in consultation with the affected student, will determine a suitable alternative that will be considered a repeat course for the purposes of this policy.

Motion:

"that SCUS approve and recommend to Senate that the repeated course policy include the following sentence "When a course is deleted by the University, the department, in consultation with the affected student, will determine a suitable alternative that will be considered a repeat course for the purposes of this policy."
