PROPOSED JOINT MAJOR IN FRENCH,
Subject...HISTORY AND POLITICS.....

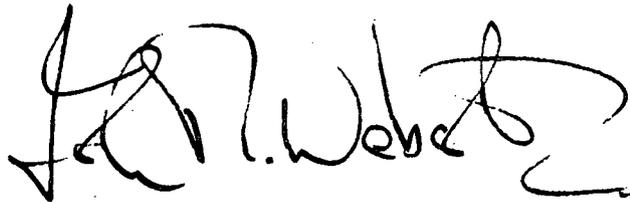

Date..JANUARY 15, 1981.....

Action undertaken by the Senate Committee on Undergraduate Studies at its meeting of December 16, 1980 and of the Senate Committee on Academic Planning on January 14, 1981, gives rise to the following motion:

MOTION: "That Senate approve and recommend approval to the Board of Governors, as set forth in S.81-33, the proposed Joint Major Program in French, History and Politics."

In discussion it was made clear that this proposal is seen as an interdepartmental rather than an interdisciplinary Major. No new courses are involved; there is merely provision for grouping of courses from the three Departments in a number of useful ways. It would not be expected in any one year that enrolments would be large.

Careful consideration was given to a request for inclusion of a specified Canadian Studies course as part of the proposal. The Steering Committee indicated that there were a number of courses in each of the three Departments which would be useful but it had not been possible to include them because of greater need for the courses now included. There is provision for waivers and this provides a suitable mechanism for consideration of any worthy proposal for combinations suggested by a student.

..... Senate Committee on Academic Planning

Date..... 19 January 1981.....

Action taken by the Senate Committee on Academic Planning at its meeting of January 14, 1981 gave rise to the following motion:

"That approval be given to the proposed joint major in French, History and Politics."

Discussion at the S.C.A.P. meeting centred on the following items:

First, the extent to which students are free to transfer from one to another of the three paradigmatic themes in Canadian, European and International Studies and their related course offerings.

Second, the extent of student interest in the proposed major.

Third, the extent to which the establishment of such a major will provide improved access to the employment market for graduates of this program.

Fourth, the extent and nature of administrative costs associated with the offering of this program.

Finally, there was discussion concerning the criteria which should be utilized by the University for the establishment of new majors. Without prejudging the merits of this particular case, the Committee felt that some attempt should be made to identify such criteria both for the benefit of departments proposing new major programs as well as evaluation bodies such as the Senate Committee on Academic Planning, Senate and the Board of Governors.

MEMORANDUM

To..... SENATE COMMITTEE ON ACADEMIC PLANNING

From H. M. EVANS, SECRETARY

SENATE COMMITTEE ON UNDERGRADUATE STUDIES

Subject... PROPOSED JOINT MAJOR IN FRENCH,
HISTORY, POLITICS - (FACULTY OF ARTS)

Date... JANUARY 8, 1981

1. The proposed program utilizes only courses already approved for offering. It permits them to be put together in various new combinations. Technically it is a new program although new program funding would not pertain.
2. It should have come earlier to SCAP; it already has been to SCUS which, after some difficulties, approved the proposal as having academic credibility/viability.
3. (If necessary reference may be made to the SCUS minutes of December 2 (pp. 5, 6), December 9 (p.1), December 16 (pp. 2,3))

In discussion it was made clear that this proposal was seen as an inter-departmental rather than an interdisciplinary Major. No new courses are involved; there is merely provision for grouping of courses from the three departments in a number of useful ways. It would not be expected in any one year that enrolments would be large.

4. Some questions have been raised at various points concerning what criteria might best be utilized to determine when such proposed combinations of courses should be strongly supported as programs or, alternatively, when the proposed gains may be less than marginal when related to costs, numbers of students, and the like. There has not been resolution of this broad question which has been generally perceived as a SCUB/SCAP nature of question rather than a direct academic question for SCUS.

It is not intended that the lack of development of overall guidelines or principles should inhibit open discussion on the present proposal; rather some consideration may be given if SCAP so determines to develop principles/guidelines for use of departments/programs as they give thought in the future to various new program potentials which basically are re-grouping of offerings, with some attendant costs but without new program funding.

These aspects may be deferred, if SCAP so decides, whilst decision is made on the immediate proposal for the Joint Major in French, History, Politics.

5. The proposal is attached.

Registrar's Note: This item is being placed on the agenda for SCUS with some reservations in view of the Copes memorandum and following action as described above. It is not yet clear that there has been appropriate resolution of concerns raised - time has prevented follow-up. It is expected that the Dean of Arts and the Dean of Interdisciplinary Studies will have this matter addressed prior to the SCUS meeting. If this has not been possible the Chairman may instruct that the item be held pending clarification, or SCUS may move to postpone discussion. It is not intended that debate on the proposal be entered upon until it is clear that any potential problem areas have been adequately addressed such that SCUS debate can be useful. It may be that the action taken by the Arts Faculty is sufficient - clarification will help.

MEMORANDUM

To: Dr. R.C. Brown, Dean,
Faculty of Arts, and
Dr. Neville J. Lincoln, Department of
Languages, Literatures and Linguistics
Subject: Joint Major in French, History and Politics

From: P. Copes, Director,
Centre for Canadian Studies
Date: 10 November 1980

I should like to thank Dr. Lincoln for sending me a copy of the program proposal for a "Joint Major in French, History and Politics".

This is a program in which the Centre for Canadian Studies naturally has an interest. I am therefore surprised not to have been drawn into the consultative process before. (It was mentioned to me by an individual faculty member and by a student that such a program was being explored, but I was led to believe it was only at a preliminary state of consideration. I had intended, when my current backlog of work had eased, to enquire more directly about this proposal.)

There is, inevitably, a large measure of overlap between some combinations of courses possible under the French/History/Politics proposal (specifically the "Canadian" theme) and some combinations of courses in the Canadian Studies major or the Canadian Studies joint major with History or Political Science. Indeed, it is possible for a student to take a combination of courses that would qualify for a degree in either program. There is also much overlap with the French Canadian Studies Certificate Program. I am not intimating that this invalidates a joint major in French, History and Politics, which has recognizable academic merit. However, it may suggest the propriety of considering some form of integration between the programs concerned.

What I do find incongruous is that the French/History/Politics proposal makes no reference at all to Canadian Studies courses that are relevant to the French/History/Politics theme. I find it difficult to understand, for instance, why Canadian Studies 350-3 (The Francophones Outside Quebec) should not have been part of the proposal. Indeed, the case could be made that all courses in the Canadian Studies curriculum are relevant (the special topics, seminar and essay courses, of course, depending on the particular topics covered in any instance).

May I suggest that, as yet, some consideration be given to the integration of Canadian Studies material with the content of the proposed joint major.

JOINT MAJOR IN FRENCH, HISTORY AND POLITICS

THE PROGRAM RATIONALE

In Canada one of the two founding cultures is French; obviously then, a thematic program of studies linking the language, politics, history and culture of the French fact in Canada and abroad is of clear curricular, academic and intellectual interest. Courses dealing with the specific areas have always existed in the calendar at S.F.U. under three departments - Department of Languages, Literatures and Linguistics, History and Political Science - without any inter-relationship established.

The purpose of the proposed Joint Major is to bring these courses together into a coherent program of studies. In order to aid students in their choice of courses thematically related in this program, we have set out three paradigmatic themes in Canadian, European and International studies corresponding to designated potential professional options such as the public service, teaching, archival and library sciences, journalism, and work in international organizations. The student can select a combination of themes (i.e. International Politics and European History) depending on his/her interest. Alterations can be made in consultation with the Steering Committee.

The Joint-Major consists of an arrangement of existing courses already offered in the three departments. There will thus be no additional costs, and a minimum of special planning and arrangements which the Steering Committee commits itself to undertake. The program Steering Committee consists of three faculty members, one from each of the participating departments.

PROPOSED CALENDAR ENTRY

Joint-Major in French, History and Politics

Steering Committee: Drs. R. Day (Hist.), T. Cohn (Pol.), G. Merler

Program objectives and rationale

An interdepartmental Joint-Major program in French, History and Political Science for students interested in the language, histories, politics and culture of the French-speaking people of Canada and the world.

Professional goals and possibilities

While the program patently stands by itself as a justifiable academic pursuit, it also serves extremely well to prepare students interested in careers in civil service, in politics (either with an emphasis on Canadian Government and Politics or on International Relations), in the diplomatic service, international organizations, journalism, teaching and archival work.

Program organization

Course offerings are divided into Themes: Canada, Europe, International. suggesting possible sequences relating to academic interests or professional goals. For example, a student interested in the diplomatic service might concentrate course selection primarily from the European and International Themes. Students must consult with the Steering Committee to ensure the clear thematicity of their proposals.

Program requirements:

a)	Lower Division - as prerequisites	HIST 12 hrs.; POL. 12 hrs.; FREN 16 hrs.; HIST or POL. 3 hrs.
b)	Upper Division -	HIST 15 hrs.; POL. 15 hrs.; FREN 15 hrs.
	Lower Division:	43 hrs.
	Upper Division:	45 hrs.

Group requirements:

Any student enrolled in this program will automatically fulfill the group A requirements and will require three additional hours outside Political Science to fulfill the group B requirements. In addition, students must complete two courses in Group C. See the Faculty of Arts requirements for complete regulations. (p.)

Course prerequisites:

Normal course prerequisites apply. Students should familiarize themselves with the relevant sections of the calendar for complete information regarding the courses listed below or consult with the various Departmental Assistants.

Freedom of entry and exit

Although the program is highly structured, it does not require students to commit themselves to it as Majors any earlier than other programs. Once embarked on the program as a Major, it is possible up to the seventh semester for a student to switch his/her program to a Major in any of the participating departments. Consequently, the student is not locked into the program. Students are advised to consult individual departments for information regarding completion of Major requirements if they change from the Joint-Major program to a standard departmental Major.

Students attention is drawn to courses offered by the Canadian Studies Program which may be of interest to them.

HISTORY

Students must take 12/15 hours of Lower Division History courses (100 & 200 Division) and at least 15 hours of Upper Division History courses (300 & 400 Division). Not all courses in the three possible streams have been included. The student should consult the calendar and may choose other History courses from each stream in consultation with the Departmental Assistant or the History Steering Committee representative. It is emphasized that such choices must fit in with the thematicity criteria of the Joint-Major program to the satisfaction of the Steering Committee.
